Egyptian and Libyan

Embassies Surrounded

CAIRO (AP) — Sudanese troops and tanks surrounded the Egyptian and Libyan embassies in Khartoum today, following the seizure of two leaders of the new Sudanese regime on their way home from London in a British airliner forced to land in Libya, the Iraqi news agency reported.

The BOAC VC10 was buzzed by Libyan fighters before landing at Bengazi airport, passengers reported. Its landing followed by hours the unexplained crash over Saudi Arabia of a special Iraqi airliner bound for Khartoum with an Iraqi delegation to the new Sudanese regime.

Libya's government radio reported possible fighting in the Sudanese capital "between rival units of the Sudanese army or as a result of a civil insurrection."

It said Sudan's Omdurman radio was broadcasting "appeals to the people," but did not explain the appeals or say what they contained.

In London, the BOAC spokesman said Col. Babikr el-Nur Osman, elected president of the Revolutionary Council after a coup last Monday, and council member Mohammed Magoub, left the jet after it made the unscheduled landing at Benina Airport in Benghazi.

The plane, with all its 105 other passengers, aboard, later returned to London.

Earlier, the leader of the Sudanese coup, Maj. Hashem Atta, told a mass rally in Khartoum he was undertaking a sweeping purge of supporters of the ousted regime.

A high-ranking Egyptian government delegation has been in Khartoum since Wednesday but it is not known whether they were in the Egyptian Embassy.

An official at Jidda Airport's said the Iraqi plane went down in dense morning fog and investigators have reached no conclusion whether the craft exploded in the air.

He said 11 persons were killed and seven survived, including the pilot. Baghdad radio said several of the victims were members of the official delegation. Three were identified as Mohammed Suleiman, a member of the ruling Baathist party leadership; Salah Saleh, a member of the Baathist military bureau, and Hammond elAzzawi, a Foreign Ministry official identkfied as an ambassador.

Arab League sources in Cairo reported the Iraqi plane explosion conincided with a chain of arrests in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad involving nearly 50 army officers and government officials. There appeared to be no connection between the Iraqi plane crash and the landing of the BOAC VC10 jetliner at Benghazi.

A BOAC spokesman said a third member of the Sudanese junta, Maj. Farouk Osman Hamadallah, also boarded the flight in London Wednesday night. But airline spokesmen and passengers were unable to say with certainty whether he, too, got off in Benghazi.

El Nur had been in London for medical treatment.

Marshal Resigns at Lilbourn

LILBOURN — Mayor Jimmy Dambach has announced the board of aldermen accepted the resignation of Johnny Martin as marshal at a meeting Tuesday.

Marshal Martin resigned Aug. 1 to accept a better paying job.

The board authorized advertising for applicants to fill the position.

The board voted a $25 per month raise for the Water Commissioner Johnnie Barnes and the Street Commissioner Charley Ross. The raises become effective Aug. 1.

The city tax rate was set at $2.65 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year.

The board accepted the sketch plan for the city as prepared by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission of Malden. The annual assessment of $143.62 by that office was approved for payment.

A request by See-Mor Cable Television, Sikeston, for a higher monthly service charge was not approved. The request of the firm was for a $1 increase in their charge to a $6 monthly fee for one connection. The firm had originally promised service by October of 1970 and now indicates it hopes to have service available before January of 1972.

The board approved the pouring of a new concrete floor for the fire truck garage section of the city hall and a small unpaved area in front of the city hall. Repairs to the collector's office have been completed.

The mayor and city clerk were authorized to enter into an engineering contract with Williamson and Associates of St. Louis for the preparation of plans, estimates of cost, and other engineering services in the enlargement of the water treatment plant and in the extension of water lines within the city.

Cape Man Sues Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A 24-year-old Air Force sergeant from Cape Girardeau, Mo., has filed a suit for $25,000 in U. S. District Court against the City of Omaha and two unnamed policemen as the result of alleged "unprovoked" attacks by officers near Elmwood Park July 8.

Sgt. John Mueller claims he was the target of "an unprovoked" attack after he and his wife, Tanya, 22, had attended a rock concert at the park.

The policemen were listed in the suit as "John Doe and Richard Roe."

In the suit, Sgt. Mueller asserted that one policeman smashed the windshield in his car and broke out another window and that when he got out of his car and asked the reason he was beaten on the head.

The suit says 25 stitches were taken to close the wound in his right eye and Mueller's sight may be permanently impared. It listed damages to the car of $400.

Mueller said he is a graduate of the University of Missouri Journalism School. He is a Vietnam veteran.

The suit charges the city is liable because the police were improperly trained and not under control. The incident occurred on one of three nights of clashes between police and young persons in the park area.

A similar suit has been filed by an Omaha TV cameraman.

Dexter Mayor Goes to Bat For Water Bonds

DEXTER— The city of Dexter has "big trouble" with water and "a lot of people don't believe we have a (water) problem," Mayor Willis Conner said today.

The mayor explained that the city has been having trouble with transmission lines, water treatment facilities and storage capacity.

Residents of Dexter will vote on a $425,000 general obligation bond issue Aug. 31 to provide water improvement for the city.

The water improvement proposal, if passed, will provide two new water wells, a new 500,000 gallon storage tank, and a new 1,000 gallon per minute water treatment plant on the north side of town.

The mayor commented:

"Everybody had better be in favor of it. The one thing we can't get along without is water. Oh yes, I'm very much in favor of it."

City Clerk G. B. McCracken said "we're going to try this thing again".

Residents voted the first time on the water improvement proposal in November of 1969 and defeated it by three votes. In early 1970, citizens voted on the proposal again and "it was defeated pretty badly," Conner recalled.

"The reason it was defeated," Conner said, "was because some claimed it (water improvement) would benefit only a few people in a certain area."

"This is not true," he said. "The water improvement will be for the whole town."

Conner commented on the problems the city has been having with water:

"Three times in the last three months we have had malfunctions at night with the (water) pump. About six weeks ago, a tree blew down over lines to the service pumps. The city was without water for some time."

He said the city's water treatment plant pumped water at a 300 gallon per minute clip in 1944 and now "it's supposed to go at 1,000 gallons per minute."

"I'm certain it's not doing it now," Conner said.

He said the plant has been in operation since 1914 and has been remodeled three times, most recently in 1957.

"If the water proposal is not passed, a possible alternative would be to ration water or raise the heck on the water rates," the mayor said.

He added that he is "not in favor on raising rates" but "we're going to have to do something."

Louisiana Man to Be Extradited

CHARLESTON — Ronald Edward Jerome, 25, of New Orleans, waived extradition this week from New Orleans, and was turned over to Mississippi county authorities. He has been wanted on a burglary charge since February of 1970.

Jerome, James T. Elliott, and Timothy Kirk were arrested Feb. 26, 1970, and charged with burglary in connection with the breakin at the Charleston Bowling Lane, according to Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

Simmons said Elliott and Jerome jumped bond of $3,500 posted on the charge. Kirk was tried and sentenced to the state penitentiary in Jefferson City.

Recently released Kirk is now being held on a murder charge by Scott County authorities.

Kirk was arrested by Scott County Sheriff John Dennis July 13 and charged with the shooting death of James Allen Roose, 25. He was released on $5,000 bond.

Roose was shot four times on the morning of July 13.

Elliott is awaiting extradition to Mississippi county from the Shelby county jail in Memphis.

Simmons said an attempted murder charge has been filed against Jerome in Memphis. No information was available from the sheriff's office on the slaying attempt in Memphis.

LIBERAL SMEAR ON MAYOR DALEY

The liberal media cannot stand a tough-minded, conservative mayor, especially if he is an "ethnic." Two examples are Mayor Daley of Chicago and former Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo, who is now the Democratic mayoral nominee in Philadelphia.

Mike Royko, a Chicago newspaperman, has done a biography of Mayor Daley that has given the Liberal Establishment an occasion for smearing the mayor. The Liberal Establishment is doing so with reviews of the book entitled "Boss."

The noted Chicago sociologist, Andrew Greeley, writes that he is unaware of a single review of "Boss" in a major national journal that was not written by a sworn public enemy of the mayor. The review editors of these journals deliberately turned the book over to men who could be counted on to endorse Royko's view of things. Greeley adds that he has joined a group called "Scholars for Daley" because "I was furious at the obvious and blatant anti-Irish tone of the university community's opposition to Daley."

Nor is it surprising that the Liberal Establishment should also attack Philadelphia's Rizzo. A recent smear job on Rizzo was written by Lenora Berson, part of a husband-and-wife team of the left-liberal faction who operate in the 8th ward in central Philadelphia. The article imputed that Rizzo was anti-semitic. Congressman Joshua Eilberg of that city defended Rizzo against this false charge.

New York's Mario Procaccino and Boston's Louise Hicks have also been objects of ethnic -cultural denigration by the Liberal Establishment. The Liberal Establishment is really ultra-conservative in its on-going attacks on Irish and Italian ethnics. Their concern about antisemitism is so much pious posturing.

According to an Idaho Power Company publication, last year, electric utilities spent more than $250 million on air quality control -- more than any other industry allocated for air and water quality controls combined. Between 1950 and 1960, electric utilities bought 90 per cent of all the air quality control equipment sold in the United States. This clearly indicated the extreme concern of the electric industry toward helping to preserve our natural surroundings.

ROME OR CEASAR?

One of the most titanic struggles of the 89th Congress took place over the question of repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Union professionals and the politicians beholden to them mounted a fierce, no-holds-barred drive to expunge 14(b) from the books. This would have stripped states of their authority to enact Right to Work laws protecting individual freedom.

It didn't work. An aroused American public rallied to the banner carried by then Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) and succeeded in quashing the union boss drive for more power.

Why had Dirksen done it? In his own flowery words: "I love Caesar, but I love Rome more." To Dirksen, the country was more important than a President paying off a political debt to union officials.

He knew the stakes in the battle were enormous. One nationally syndicated columnist noted that union bosses would have netted $15 million in forced dues immediately upon repeal of 14(b). "Principle be damned," said the columnist, "they want the $15 million."

But Rome, not Caesar triumphed. Union professionals lost the $15 million with which to pursue additional political power — experts estimate union bosses spend 85 % of their time politicking. And AFL-CIO President Meany candidly admits, "You just can't have too much power."

It's the source of that power — the compulsory union shop — that should be of concern to all Americans. It is being wielded by the Caesars of 1971 in a way that threatens the very underpinnings of Rome. This is understood by Rep. Philip Crane (R-Ill.), who has introduced legislation to correct the situation and testified in its behalf before Congress just this week.

As Senator Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.) put it recently, "The use by union professionals of massive amounts of compulsory dues for politics must be stopped if our representative form of government is to be preserved."

Unless that monstrous political machinery of the modern day Caesars is brought under control, our entire political system could be engulfed. Recognizing this, Sen. Fannis and Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) have co-authored an amendement to the campaign election reform bill that will likely come up for debate on the floor of the United States Senate soon. The amendment would deny tax-exempt status to any organization, including unions, which use compulsory dues money directly or indirectly for political purposes.

It's an important step in the right direction, one that will provide an acid test for the 100 members of the "world's greatest deliberative body." And when the votes have been recorded, the American public will know which Senators place the interests of the country above the interests of a handful of union bosses made powerful through the compulsory union shop.

Rome or Caesar? We'll know soon enough.

CONTROLLING ACTS OF GOD

Virgin Islanders have set aside Sunday, July 25, as Supplication Day, to pray for deliverance from hurricanes. At the end of the season in late October they celebrate Deliverance Day to give thanks for being spared -- and they have been for almost 40 years. Until recently this method of warding off destructive weather was as good as any other. Now scientists in the United States, Russian and other countries are making limited progress in scientific weather modification. "Our theories aren't perfect, and we still have a lot to learn, but weather control is further advanced than the public generally realizes," Robert M. White, director of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), told the Wall Street Journal (July 12, 1971).

Scientists at the NOAA's experimental meterological laboratory in Miami have had partial success this spring with a cloud-seeding program aimed at alleviating the Florida drought. In the coming weeks scientists will attempt to weaken the force of potential hurricanes with a seeding method similar to the one used to make rain. Clouds are bombarded with vast quantities of silver iodide, which causes chemical changes that release heat and reduce the hurricane's wind velocity. Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, predicted last year that within five years a hurricane approaching the coast with 100-knot winds will have its winds reduced to 70 knots or less and the height of the water reduced by 50 per cent. The first suggestion that hurricanes could be controlled came in August 1969, when Hurricane Debbie abated after seeding. Besides rain-making and hurricane control, researchers are also working on methods to surpress cloud-to-ground lightning, reduce hail, and disperse fog and snow storms. Science magazine (May 7, 1971) predicts that the unsolved technological problems of weather tampering will be resolved long before the legal and political ones it poses. The "use of weather modification techniques on a large scale raises difficult questions about legal responsibilities, conflicting social desires, and appropriate governmental regulatory activities." Last year, for example, Florida tomato growers threatened to seek a court injunction against cloud-seeding until it was postponed. And the potential for international complications is so great it has so far deterred any wide-ranging weather experiments.

SLIPSHOD LOBBY REPORTS

Several years ago the Missouri Legislature added a requirement for spending reports by lobbyists to its weak conflict of interest code. We thought that a modest improvement. How modest is shown by the fact that the deadline for lobbyists to file their reports concerning the last legislative session was July 10, and by that time only about 41 per cent of the known lobbyists had bothered to file — mostly in terms of unrevealing lump-sum amounts spent. Perhaps the lobbyists are no more to blame for this irregularity than the state, which is supposed to enforce the lobbying law and its penalties. If the state does not do this, lobby registration can be expected to erode toward non - existence.

Hand That Rocks the Wallet

There's one area of the women's rights movement where the girls are clearly winning:

Women start "liberating" the pay checks of their husbands within a year or so after marriage, reports the Survey Research Laboratory of the University of Illinois.

The laboratory interviewed about 250 newlywed couples in Peoria and Decatur, asking them about various aspects of money handling. A year later, the same couples answered the same questions again.

"Comparison of the two sets of responses shows that the wives are taking over in every case," says Prof. Robert Ferber, director of the laboratory.

In the important area of decision-making, there was a 98 per cent increase in the proportion of wives deciding what to do with leftover money, and a 56 per cent increase in the proportion of wives deciding how much cash to get.

The proportion of wives responsible for getting cash, paying bills and keeping track of expenses rose by 38 per cent, 30 per cent and 14 per cent respectively.

TOTAL SAFETY PENALIZES PROGRESS

Twenty – five years ago, there was little public discussion of the side effects of "miracle" drugs. The current political mania for absolute safety had yet to make its appearance. With respect to the more sophisticated healing drugs, there was no issue because the drugs did not exist twenty-five years ago; and for lack of them, countless people merely sickened and died. Of course, total safety is a will-of-the-wisp unattainable short of the grave.

The real issue has been well stated in an advertisement of the pharmaceutical industry. It says, "If a drug could restore your health would you accept the risk of side effects?" There is little doubt that most people would and do, when the drugs are available for their physicians to prescribe. A director of clinical medicine with a major pharmaceutical company presents his views in the drug industry advertisement. He observes, ". . . that every potent drug can cause side effects. If it didn't have any at all, it couldn't possibly do any good. The question is one of benefits versus potential risks. .. With the advent of more potent and useful products, undesirable side effects sometimes become a problem. This will be true in the future, too. . . a balance must be drawn between the good work done by a drug and its uunwanting effects. Physicians often can affect this balance by adjusting the dosage, or by selecting a different form of an existing drug product potent enough to do the job. But that doesn't stop us from looking for improvements."

The point is, both physicians and the drug industry should be given the greatest possible leeway in the use and development of the kind of drugs that one of these days you, or a member of your family, may desperately need. Those who slavishly pursue the cult of total safety ignore the value of the calculated risk -- which is inherent in the process of living.

Peat Moss Restores Sanity

THERE WAS A twinkle in the Old Promoter's eye (the good one) when he dropped in today. "My mind is at ease for the first time in years," he said.

"You know, one of the high crimes of American advertising writers is the dangling comparative," he went on. "They write that their produce is cheaper, smoother, firmer, softer and they say it offers more enjoyment, more pleasure, more security, but they never say what is at the other end of the comparison.

"After a few hours of reading the ads, I find myself mumbling to myself, "Gibbicks are cheaper than what? Zubbubs are chewier than what; Pippips give me more pleasure than what? It has become an obsession with me. You know how sometimes a jingle or a tune gets lodged in your mind and keeps running around in circles until it drives all sense out? That's the way the dangling comparatives affect me.

"Well, I've got a cure. It's peat moss. Whenever I read one of those comparisons, I mentally add 'peat moss.' It makes sense, at least enough to get the dangles out of my mind. Try it. Grunchies are richer than peat moss! Clabber soap offers more enjoyment than peat moss! It is a simple way to break up congestion of the brain."

The Old Promoter may have something there.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

You'll enjoy your life more after 40 if you make it a rule never to read a book more than 400 pages long—except the Bible. Any author who can't say what's on his mind in 400 pages is only mumbling to himself.

The two most discontented types of people in America are Army colonels and the vice presidents of large corporations. They are symbols of top-level failure. The colonel who never wins a general's star, the vice president who never gets his name lettered in gold on the Big Door—each feels in his heart like an also ran, who almost made it but didn't quite.

This would be a happier world if at least once a year everyone in it would sit down in the grass with his heart's desire and spend an hour together doing nothing but look for fourleaf clovers.

Achievement of some kind is possible to anybody, no matter what the handicap. That's why so many girls wear long fingernails. It is the only way they can think of to gain attention.

What is the most disappointing food you've ever had. Mine was pomegranate. It sounds so exotic and romantic, but the first and last time I tasted a pomegranate, it turned out to be a mouthful of disillusion. It was not nearly as exciting as a simple slice of watermelon.

We all need to blow off steam now and then. That's why it's a good idea to have a mischievous cat around a home. It gives the master of the house something to swear at.

There are few things more deflating than being the last man in a parade. I'd rather not march in one than be its tag ender.

One of the best ways to please a girl is to propose marriage to her over long-distance telephone. The best way to annoy her is to reverse the charges.

One of the big differences between today and yesteryear is the hour and a half longer today a woman motorist with a flat tire has to wait before a gallant male motorist will halt and help her fix it.

The simplest way to halt a small child's crying is to take out your upper plate of false teeth and hold them to your ear as if they were talking to you. Fascinated by this, the child will immediately cease crying and tug at his own teeth in an attempt to duplicate your feat. If you don't have an upper plate of false teeth, you can use lower plate. It works almost as well.

A girl who marries a man with a waxed mustache has only herself to blame. No man who takes the time to keep his mustache waxed has time enough left for true love.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The government is moving rapidly toward making it possible to survive the impact of an auto week, but it's barely moving at all to make it easier to get out of your car afterwards.

The result is that 3,500 persons are killed in wrecked-auto fires each year and another 1,000 drown in submerged vehicles, according to data cited by a University of Oklahoma research team under contract with the Department of Transportation.

The researchers' obscure report, entitled "Escape Worthiness of Vehicles and Occupant Survival," concludes, moreover, "Enough detail is available to establish that entrapment without fire or submergence is frequent enough to be a serious problem."

Transportation Department officials say the Oklahoma group is continuing its work, and they point out that standards for flammability of auto upholstery have already been set.

But we have searched in vain through the confidential, $40.5 million National Highway Safety Bureau 1973 research budget for any sign that the bureau is doing the kind of large-scale research that will be needed to establish full standards for escape-worthiness.

What's more, the flammability standard set by the Department is what the Oklahoma research team already found to be the norm in the cars they tested.

And there is apparently no use looking to the auto industry itself to take the lead in making vehicles more fire-resistant. For the companies wanted the government to set a far weaker fabrics standard than the burn rate of four inches per minute which was finally established.

As the Oklahoma study put it: "The 15-inch-per- minute horizontal burning rate advocated by the automobile manufacturers for vehicle interior materials is equivalent to the burning rate of ordinary paper towels."

--SLIM SURVIVAL CHANCE--

The report indicated strongly that the chances of survival in a car that plunges into water are slim. "The air bubble entrapped in (the test) vehicle could be breathed less than one minute by the front-seat passengers and only slightly greater than a minute by experienced divers in the rear seat," it said.

The report found that car doors sometimes jammed under water for reasons that apparently have nothing to do with the so-called "overpressure" of the water that bears down on the roof.

This overpressure often pushes the tops of cars "down significantly," making it still harder to either get out or breathe.

Equally treacherous after an accident are buses, especially school buses with push-out windows, the researchers discovered.

"Push-out windows pose significant problems as an escape route from a bus," the report says. "They are often inadequate to prevent passenger ejection and/or too difficult to open for escape."

Intercity buses, too, were found to have escape problems: "The adequacy of window exits for escape when passengers are injuried is doubtful because of the problems in entering the exits as well as the height of the exit above the ground."

Note: The sad state of the escapability art is all the more surprising in view of the uproar two years ago over the death of Mary Jo Kopechne who was trapped and drowned when Sen. Edward Kennedy's car went off the bridge at Chappaquiddick Island.

--POLLUTION PUBLICIST--

The Boating Industry Association has sent letters to newspapers calling us to task for telling how outboard motors dump 100 million gallons of oil and gas into our streams, rivers and coastal waters each year.

The boat group's executive director, Matt Kaufman, said we got our figures from an anti-pollution company with an ax to grind. Kaufman is a sloppy publicist for a man who represents 500 boating firms. If he had called us, we would have told him the figures came from a Federal Water Quality Administration report, not a private company.

The federal report, dated September, 1970, and called "Contribution of Marine Outboard Engines to Water Pollution" gives an estimate of "100 million to 200 million gallons a year" for the gunk dumped in our waters by the engines. And this report's author, federal sanitary engineer Denis Lussier, told us "in my opinion this is pretty conservative."

Kaufman cites a study on the harmlessness of oil and gas dumpage by outboards, but fails to say the study was sponsored by Mercury, a big manufacturer of outboard motors. To the credit of the companies, they are at last marketing an anti-polluting motor this year. But with a spokesman like Kaufman, we, at least, will have a hard time believing what they have to say about it.

Sauce for Goose Is Not. . . .

Kent State University trustees have approved changes in the school's code of student conduct, including a provision for interim suspension of students in certain cases.

"The interim suspensions will be used with restraint, such as in cases of gross violence or of continuing danger to university order," President Robert I. White told the trustees. "If used, an effort will be made to hold a practically simultaneous hearing."

Three student representatives attending the meeting objected to the changes.

"Students will view this as another phase of a repressive society," said one, warning that it could lead to "increased polarization" that could possibly result in violence.

"Before any student is punished there should be a hearing to determine whether he is guilty," said another.

By the same token, no police officer should ever be given an interim suspension pending investigation of charges of brutality or excessive use of force or other unbecoming conduct during, say, a campus disturbance.

But you'll never hear any student extending his logic that far.

THE BROWN SHIRTS ARE BACK

At a recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in Washington, the self-avowed revolutionary, Rennie Davis, told members that he and his comrades would soon return to the Capitol city to instigate destruction again. Davis claimed that "...if the Government doesn't stop the war, we will stop the Government."

Later, at a news conference, Davis said that the new campaign will be "militant and broad-based, aimed at creating an intolerable situation for the American Government as long as it continues its war policies. If Richard Nixon thinks this week was hot, wait until next time. This was only a warmup."

In support of the well-done job of the Washington police in that battle with Davis forces, Attorney General John N. Mitchell says he hopes the same strong resistance by lawmen will be continued during the promised demonstrations.

Mitchell also took issue with Senator Lee Metcalf, who compared the police to the Nazis. Mitchell said: "I would like to recall another group of civilians who roamed the streets of Germany in the 1920's, bullying people, shouting down those who disagreed with them, and denying other citizens their civil rights. They were called Hitler's Brown Shirts." As Mitchell pointed out, if those first Germ n Brown Shirts had been called to account for their theft of the rights of others and made to pay for it, the world might have been spared a whole era of violence and misery.

The Brown Shirts of Republic USA should be stopped now, by whatever deterrent required. Or we may have to "face the music" as Germany did. HLH

Angry Longshoremen Set To Paralyze Vital Harbors From Maine To Texas

By Victor Riesel

Miami: -- Visions of shipments of oil for the lamps of China is no salve for the militant conventioning Longshoremen's leaders here. Many of them are angry men -- for many of their followers are jobless. And there's strike fever in the tepid air. If the signals are what they seem to be, harbors from Sears Port, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas, will be shut tight, headlines will be screaming just as they are now over rail and communication crises.

It's always startling to insiders to observe the lack of national understanding of the significance of the open-shirted, rough and always ready dockwallopers, here for their 42nd national convention. They are one of the few actual industrial power blocs in the land. If they strike when their contract is up on Sept. 30, they can cork up the land by bottling up Canadian, Great Lakes, Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Then, mighty little cargo moves in or out of the nation, docks are clogged, rail freight backs up, truck, rail and water freight is embargoed -- and a rail strike is much like a short circuit on a toy train set by comparison. Yet though the signals are obvious here, and all the maritime government leaders are here -- including journalism's gift of women's lib and federal officialdom, former reporter Helen D. Bentley, now chairlady of the U.S. Maritime Commission -- little is being done by Congress to avert a stoppage before the nation gets another set of strike-provoked screaming-meemies.

Congress could do this by pouring out a few million dollars in ship subsidies to make more work -- instead of standing by and letting a stoppage flare which will cost billions of dollars. But the men on the Hill never move until they are called into midnight session to sit as a national labor court.

From here on the scenario will run somewhat like this: The opening scene will be the New York Harbor. There the piers are rotting and dying. Some 4,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) (AFL-CIO) are jobless. Many of the movie-type hook-carrying dockwallopers have been replaced by huge steel containers which carry cargo in one huge steel "package."

However, under the swiftly expiring three-year contract these men are guaranteed an annual wage of $9,568. To get this money they must show for work at the central registers. Not all of them report regularly. Not all of them are constantly without work. So don't do any arithmetic. The cost, however, is enormous for the New York Shipping Assn. which pays the bill for the idle.

In the first year, the guaranteed pay ran to $2.7 million. Then it jumped to $14 million. Finally this year it will hit $30 million. This makes it a total of some $47 million for idle men.

Executive Vice President Jonnny Bowers, as quiet as he is tough when he bargains for his men, says: "We have got 4,000 longshoremen who have lost their jobs. We're lucky we negotiated the guaranteed annual wage. The men, however, just check in and go home. But they are lost people. It's good to know a man has a check. But it is not good for him to be without work."

Bowers, working closely with his chief, ILA President Teddy Gleason, wants new container pier facilities built on Manhattan's West Side, the historic docks once known the world over as the great passenger and cargo center. It would not take much money to whip them into shape. And it would not take more than $20 million to subsidize the reactivating of luxury liners such as the United States, the Independence and the Constitution, eight of which are now laid up.

There isn't a single American flag passenger ship moving out of Atlantic and Gulf ports. They can't operate or even break even without a subsidy. Yet the U.S. State Dept. has been pressuring Gleason and Bowers to handle Soviet cruise ships now looking for blue-ribbon traffic. Gleason has said he would end the longshoremen's 21-year ban on handling Russian vessels if the U.S. government would put a few "pennies" into the American passenger ships.

If there is no work in Manhattan there will be a strike there -- and if New York goes down, "if you can't settle a contract in New York, you can't settle a contract anywhere until we settle first. New York is the bargaining spot. After New York is settled then we go to the rest of the ports," says Bowers.

And now the ILA is asking for a guaranteed weekly pay which will be more costly and the New York Shipping Assn. says this contract negotiation is "Operation Survival" for all sides and it can't continue to pay $50 million "and millions more for work not here and work not done."

"The employers might as well know now that I will never give up the guaranteed annual wage," says Bowers. "It is a No. 1 strike issue. They might as well know also that we want it improved...

"Our cards are on the table and it is no secret that our hole card is the strength and determination of our membership to do what they have to in order to get a fair and decent contract."

So the public now knows and shouldn't be surprised when the docks are paralyzed as they are now on the West Coast. There's never any mystery to the intricacies of a massive and crippling strike. The cards always are on the table.

This time, however, not only the nation's entire transport, on sea, land and even in the air is involved, but foreign policy and trade with the Soviets and with Red China too. Now is the time for Congress to pay the pennies for our own waterfront people instead of opening the docks to what is essentially unfair, slave-wage Communist competition!

Buckley Says His Magazine Faked Secret Paper Report

NEW YORK (AP) — William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the National Review, says his magazine perpetrated a hoax with fictional Vietnam papers to show that such forgeries "would be widely accepted as genuine provided their content was inherently plausible."

Buckley revealed the elaborate spoof Wednesday after a large segment of the American news media had carried stories on what the magazine called "highly classified government documents relating to the Vietnam war."

"We admit we proceeded in something of an ethical vacuum," Buckley told newsmen with a broad grin, but he suggested that somewhere in the government archives were real documents similar to the forgeries printed in the magazine.

"The point is that the papers, or something like them, must have been written," he said. "Therefore, one concludes that the difficulty was not that the Pentagon and the CIA gave LBJ bad advice, but that LBJ didn't take good advice."

Another aim of the hoax, he said, was to demonstrate "that the Pentagon and the CIA are not composed of incompetents— the unwarranted conclusion to which many were led by the fragmentary revelations of the New York Times and The Washington Post."

Appearing under the title, "The Secret Papers They Didn't Publish," the National Review "documents" included dispatches attributed to former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the CIA and others. Most were dated in the early 1960s.

Suspicions of a hoax grew when several of the persons listed as authors said they couldn't recall writing the "documents." Social historian Daniel Boorstin flatly denied writing a memo the magazine credited to him.

Buckley, who had been unavailable for comment when the magazine was released to the press, said at the Wednesday news conference that the "documents" were composed by editors of the magazine "ex nihilo"--out of nothing.

The New York Times, however, said today that at least some of the "documents" were composed ex New York Times and from the published statements of the persons credited with authorship by the magazine.

The Times said the first two memorandums quoted in the National Review were in fact excerpted from actual memorandums printed by the Times in its series in June and July about the secret Pentagon study of American involvement in the war.

Buckley, who has been championing the right wing and sticking pins in liberals since his days at Yale University, has been known to enjoy a puton in the past.

He ran for mayor of New York City in 1965 "half in fun," telling newsmen that if elected his first act would be to "demand a recount." That wasn't necessary as he lost to John V. Lindsay.

One of 10 children of a millionaire Connecticut oilman, Buckley evinced an early interest in politics when at the age of 6 he wrote a letter to King George V suggesting England pay its war debt.

He first came to national attention in 1951 when, fresh out of school, he wrote "God and Man at Yale," a scathing indictment of his alma mater which he claimed was drifting to leftism.

He founded the weekly National Review in 1954 to "keep the left from winning by default" to such liberal rival publications as The Nation, the New Leader and the New Republic.

Talking of the hoax Wednesday, he said the idea "arose at an editorial meeting two weeks ago yesterday. We were discussing the Pentagon papers as released and the fact they were ideologically tendentious.

"I, in fact, initiated the idea. I said, 'Hey, team, what do you think about this—?' We were remarking on the point Maxwell Taylor made that the papers were fragmentary.

"We reasoned that others at that time saw what was actually happening and gave appropriate advice to the government. We then created them. That step was easy for National Review editors."

"Those who will want to question the methods we used in order to make our demonstration may proceed to do so," he said. "I take the opportunity to point out that there were no personal victims of the National Review papers but, we like to believe, many beneficiaries."

Formula Liberalized to Allow Bigger Cotton Payments in '72

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department has liberalized a formula under which cotton farmers will be able to collect larger government payments in 1972 to help offset losses this year from drought and other natural disasters.

The formula change was included in a package of drought-relief actions announced Wednesday by Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin.

Involved is a cotton farmer's average production used as a basis for computing his price support payments of 15 cents a pound. That payment is for cotton grown on "national allotment" acres which is used domestically.

Although the regulation change was directed mainly toward southwestern cotton areas currently plagued by drought, an agricultural stabilization and conservation service spokesman said the upgraded formula will apply universally throughout the Cotton Belt.

A farmer whose crop was cut this year by too much rain, for example, also would be eligible for the increased benefits.

Hardin's announcement also extended haying and grazing privileges on land taken from production and emergency livestock feed sales from government-owned stocks through next Dec. 31.

Those programs, for designated counties in drought areas, were due to expire on Aug. 31.

Procedures for getting the government-owned grain also were modified, including authorization to let farmers use their own vehicles to help haul grain into drought areas, and a speed-up in clearing grain purchase applications through government offices.

Hardin also called attention to federal aid available for sharing with farmers the costs of emergency tillage to prevent wind erosion on crop land and pastures.

'Fiddler on Roof' Sets Mark

NEW YORK (AP)— A cheering audience gave "Fiddler on the Roof" a five-minute standing ovation as the cast completed the 2,845th performance, making it the longest-running musical in Broadway history.

Outside two huge spotlights played on the Broadway Theater. Inside, balloons floated down from the ceiling as Mayor John V. Lindsay, the creators of the musical and the first star of the show went on stage Wednesday night for a post-performance celebration with the present cast.

"It's a wonderful thing about Sholom Aleichem," Zero Mostel, the original star of the show, said of the man who wrote the stories that inspired "Fiddler."

"He's become more acceptable than Shakespeare. He runs longer," Mostel said. "Sholom Aleichem means 'peace be with you', and that's what it's all about today."

The musical tale of Tevye, a Yiddish dairyman in Russia at the turn of the century, broke the 2,844-performance mark set when "Hello, Dolly!" closed last Dec. 27. "Fiddler" is still going strong--mail orders are being accepted through next Jan. 2.

A total of 147 investors spent $375,000 to bring the show to Broadway on Sept. 22, 1964. They and producer Harold Prince have reaped $6,952,500 in profits--a return of 927 per cent on the investment.

Prince had invited the cast, the audience, and the actors, authors, producers and directors of all shows now running on Broadway to the performance party.

The audience of 1,900 persons included the grandchildren of Sholom Aleichem.

Encouraging Report Issued on Corn Blight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plant pathologists concerned with the destructive southern corn leaf blight say damage to this year's crop has been light so far and spread of the disease has been slower than expected in most of the Corn Belt.

A survey of agriculture officials in some midwestern states showed all in agreement that mostly dry weather the remainder of the growing season could ensure a fairly good crop. Blight thrives best under hot, humid conditions.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin said Wednesday the blight has caused no significant economic damage yet this year. In South Sioux City, Neb., to meet with governors of 15 midwestern states, Hardin added that blight has been noted this year in all major corn-producing states.

Last year the disease was a major contributor to a 15 per cent loss in the corn crop.

State agriculture officials surveyed by The Associated Press Wednesday reported spread of disease in their states as ranging from light to moderate and "not serious." Several states reported the blight is "no problem."

In Illinois, plant pathologists at the University of Illinois said that at present infection levels, the amount of damage likely to occur will be less than the actual damage in 1970.

In Nebraska, the disease has been found in 43 of the state's 93 counties, including the major corn producing areas.

Dr. David Wyson, plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska, said, "We have had intermittent weather periods which are favorable to spread of the disease followed by others not favorable. If the weather holds dry, we should be in fairly good shape."

Kansas officials reported the blight was confirmed in 30 eastern counties where damage was reported as light. They said the disease is not expected to become a serious problem. Officials added no reports had been received from southern counties of the state, where the disease was prevalent last year.

In Iowa, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said there has been some increase in the spread of the disease, but that for the most part the infection still is light in the state.

Minnesota reported the disease was confirmed in 17 counties. A University of Minnesota extension service spokesman said, however, that it is "a very, very light infestation."

Revised Food Stamp Plan to Be Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department planned to announce today revised proposals for putting more food stamps into the hands of the poorest families and shutting out hippies and job-shy adults.

The revised plan is the Nixon administration's answer to Capitol Hill critics who charged regulations announced last April were too restrictive and that some low-income families would wind up paying more for food stamps.

Food stamps, governmentbacked coupons sold to qualified low-income people, are chief weapons in the government's pledge to wipe out hunger in the United States.

About 11 million persons get stamps, double the number a year ago. The coupons are sold at rates based on household monthly income and bonuses given to boost family buying power at grocery stores.

Under new uniform schedules proposed in April, for example, a family of four with an income of $50 to $60 a month would spend $10 on stamps worth $108 a supermarkets.

Congress, in a new $2-billiona-year food-stamp law passed late in 1970, liberalized the program generally but also slapped new restrictions on some users. Able-bodied adults, for example, would be required to register for and accept available jobs as part of the food stamp qualification.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — Tickets for the governor's birthday party Saturday sold out Wednesday. It marked the earliest sellout of tickets in the six-year history of the fund raising event for Democrats.

State Democratic chairman Delton Houtchens of Clinton said receipts for the party are in excess of $50,000 to date.

Houtchens explained the 1,392 seating at the Ramada Inn hwere has always been sold, but the 1971 celebration is "the earliest sellout ever." He said sales would continue to 10 per cent above capacity as usual, counting on that number of absentees, but he expected sales to end Wednesday.

The Hearnes' birthday party honors the governor and his wife whose birthdays are on July 24—date of this year's party. It has been the big fund raising event of the year for the Democratic Party since Hearnes became governor.

Hearnes Urges Bond Hearings

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said Wednesday night he will ask the state highway commission to hold open hearings on the possibility of including rapid transit in a proposed $464 million road bond issue.

Previously Hearnes said he is against tying rapid transit to the road issue because he didn't think they would pass as a package. The commission is preparing to conduct an initiative petition drive to bring the road proposal before the voters.

Hearnes, said he would be willing to include rapid transit if it can be shown the voters want it. He said he was still not sure it has enough support in St. Louis or Kansas City.

The governor is slated to address the highway commission at its next meeting. The commission chairman, Jack Stapleton, Sr., said: "If the governor thinks we should have public hearings I think the commission would go along."

Mother Enjoys Being A Patsy to Loafer Son

Dear Ann Landers: I saw myself in your column the other day -- the homely child whose mother was so ashamed she covered the little girl's face with a heavy veiling when she took her out in the baby carriage.

I hope your message got through to that mother because nobody got through to mine. I grew up believing I was the ugliest person in the world. I didn't make friends because I felt I was too homely to be seen with. My posture was bad because I kept my shoulders hunched so no one would have to look at my face.

One day a kind teacher asked me to stay after school. I swear I thought she was going to tell me I was too ugly to be in her class, and I was being transferred. Instead she told me I had very pretty hair and nice eyes and I shouldn't worry about my nose and chin -- that my face would develop nicely in time and I might even be considered a beauty. She showed me magazine pictures of models who had weak chins and prominent noses and explained that irregular features could be "interesting." That wonderful teacher changed my life. After our visit I stood a little straighter and started to believe that one day I might be considered attractive. I began to open up to others and accept friendship -- something I couldn't do before. Today I am happily married and we have two beautiful children. Please print this letter for other Ugly Ducklings and their mothers. It might help someone -- somewhere. --- Made It Anyway

Dear M.I.: Here's your letter -- and a big bouquet of orchids to that wonderful teacher. I hopes she sees it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our brother is 25 years of age, a bona fide loafer and a well-dressed bum. He has been out of work for two years and is not looking very hard. He lives with Mom who has bought him a car, pays for his insurance, gives him spending money, irons his shirts (the laundries aren't careful enough) and cracks his soft-boiled eggs in the morning. (If she gets a few shells in them he yells at her.)

Last week he married a 19-year-old girl. She has no job either. Mom owns this building and he wants one of her choice apartments -- "on credit." We feel he has taken advantage of Mom to the point that it is sickening. How can we get her to see the light? --- Fed Fed Fed

Dear Triple Fed: Your mother doesn't want to see the light. She enjoys being a patsy for your brother. In fact, she has set herself up for it. The sad thing is that her indulgence has made him what he is today -- and he will pay the price.

Dear Ann Landers: Our nine-year-old son and his six-year-old cousin play nicely together. Last Sunday I went to the bedroom to call them for supper and I found them half undressed, 'playing doctor." I was so upset I nearly fainted.

Our son has always been a good child and I had no idea he was interested in sex. I don't know how far they went but I am worried. My husband and I are respectable people and we don't know where the boy got off the track. Is this child disturbed? Should we seek help for him? --- Lousiville Dear Louis: All normal children are inquisitive. It is natural for them to explore. This doesn't mean they are disturbed ---- or bad.

Youngsters should not be left unsupervised, for long periods of time under any circumstances. Moreover the children should be taught that their bodies are "private" and clothes must be kept on. If the clothes come off occasionally, Mom should not become unglued and make them feel they've done a terrible thing.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Investment Analyst Says the Long Skirt Has Won

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Call it midi or longuette, the triumph of the longer skirt by any name is inevitable.

And with the ultimate victory of the calf-length hem, American women for perhaps the first time will enjoy a panorama of flexible fashion in which nearly anything goes and apparel decisions are dominated by mood.

So says Joanne Howard, investment analyst for ISI Corp., San Francisco, who makes stock recommendations in the apparel field to the ISI Group of Mutual Funds.

Mrs. Howard acknowledges that longer skirts "didn't make it last year — but I don't think anything in the way of big change would have made it last year.

"The consumer was just too uncertain about a lot of things, including fashion. If 'hot pants' or mini skirts had been introduced last fall, I don't think they would have made it, either. The timing wasn't right."

In a period of uncertainty, economic or otherwise, the consumer — especially the female — turns to compromise, Mrs. Howard says.

"The pants suit was an ideal compromise for her," she notes. "With it, she didn't have to worry about skirt length — and she knew she would be able to wear the pants after the skirt controversy is resolved.

"Things have changed now, though. Pants suits are not being purchased as dressy apparel—they are returning to the category of sports wear, and this will increase as women turn to the longer skirt."

Mrs. Howard feels too much was expected of the consumer in the conversion to the midi; the longer skirt required time for acceptance.

"It was such a drastic, dramatic change — from mini to midi," she notes. "Fashion experts accepted it swiftly, of course, because they like rapid change. But the consumer could not accept it immediately—none of her friends was wearing it. For a time, there was hardly anyone to emulate."

The acceptance of the miniskirt was a gradual accomplishment too, Mrs. Howard recalls, which "succeeded the same way I believe the long skirt will.

"It started in England and crossed the Atlantic. The fashion-conscious in New York discovered it, then those in California went for it. Finally, the Midwest got the message. And this is what is happening with the longuette or midi.

Getting Started Off On Right Foot Hard

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Getting off on the right foot is the goal of most young marrieds, but for Charles and Maria Dillow, that's going to have to wait until they get their right legs out of casts.

Victims of leg fractures July 11 when their motorcycle collided with a car at an intersection as they were en route to the home of Mrs. Dillow's grandmother for Sunday dinner, the Dillows face convalesence of at least six months before he can return to his job as a truck driver and she as a waitress.

"It may be a year before I can go back to work," Dillow said. Dillow, 23, a veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam, and Maria, 18, were married almost two years ago while Dillow was on leave between tours in Vietnam. Upon his discharge,they settled into an apartment, and as Maria put it: "Things were just starting to go well when this happened."

"My medical insurance covers some of our expenses," Dillow said. "But with the months of hospitalization and therapy plus our other bills, I just don't know what we're going to do."

Mrs. Dillow's grandmother, Mrs. Leota Staples, has moved the young couples's belonging to her home and she decided along with Mrs. Dillow's mother, Mrs. Mary Buck of Herman, Neb., to set up a fund for the couple.

Love Is Artist to Be Married Saturday

It will be a winter wedding in July when Miss Marilyn Judith Grove and Roberto Alfredo Vincenzo Casali are married on Saturday in New Zealand.

Miss Grove is Kim Grove, the artist and creator of the popular Love Is... panel from The Daily Standard. Love Is... was born as a newspaper feature when the Los Angeles based Miss Grove started concluding her daily love letters to her finance in San Francisco with a little drawing and a romantic caption which began with the words Love Is...

A newspaperman friend saw the drawings, suggested they be syndicated, and now the cartoon panel is carried in more than 250 newspapers.

Miss Grove, a native of Auckland, and Casali will be married on July 24 at Saint Andrew's Church, Epsom, Auckland, New Zealand, the same church in which her parents were married in 1936.

Gourmet Cooking Is Now The Thing

MINNEAPOLIS — Not too long ago the average American's idea of a good meal was steak, chops or fried chicken. Now it's apt to be Beef Fondue or Coq au Vin.

The idea of flavor used to be salt, pepper and a bottle of catsup. Now it's likely to be red wine, rosemary, anise or shallots.

Gourmet cooking is the art of making good food taste better. One expert defines gourmet foods as "products with extra quality." Another says it's making the most of what you have. Some think that any gourmet meal is one that does more than just satisfy hunger pangs.

Any foreign or ethnic dish, not ordinarily in one's diet, can be gourmet. Health and organically-grown foods are also beginning to come into the gourmet picture.

Earle R. MacAusland, publisher of Gourmet, sees the trend in gourmet cooking as a sign that Americans are at last beginning to appreciate good food.

The changing lifestyles of young homemakers, increased leisure and home entertainment have contributed to the growing interest in good food. Postwar affluence sent millions of Americans abroad to study and travel; they came back eager to duplicate their new food experiences. Servicemen and their families, on overseas duty, returned with a love for foreign foods and the knowhow to prepare them.

There has been an increasing urge for status, and gourmet cooking gives the homemaker something "new and different" to serve for family or guests. Seeking new dishes can be a social activity.

Americans have found, in gourmet cooking, a way to be creative, giving them the satisfaction of personal accomplishment.

Twenty years ago, gourmet or specialty foods could be found only in a handful of fancys food stores or delicatessens in large cities, mainly New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Today there is hardly a community without some kind of specialty food outlet.

Practically all supermarkets have now at least a small gourmet corner, reports the Family Economics Bureau. Larger stores may also have sections of premium quality fruits, vegetables and meats. Department stores, gift shops, boutiques and scores of fancy food shops also offer a tempting array of imported and domestic foods.

It is estimated that sale of gourmet foodstuffs ran well over $1 billion last year. And it's expanding at a rate of about 10% each year.

While a real gourmet says a cookbook is merely the foundation that allows one to use imagination, sales of cookbooks are booming. In 1960, U.S. publishers brought out only 40 new cookbooks. Last year saw over 200 new volumes. The circulation of Gourmet magazine has almost doubled since 1967.

Among the 1200 cookbooks available today, there can be found books on virtually every foreign cuisine. And cookbooks devoted exclusively to pancakes, rice, beef, casseroles, chicken or souffles. There are books on gourmet cooking for one or more, for a crowd, or the American kitchen. One can be a gourmet at the grill, on a low-fat or cardiac diet, with health foods or wine.

TV cooking show and local cooking schools have greatly aided the appreciation of good food and drink. For those to whom foreign foods once meant pizza and chop suey, the Galloping Gourmet and Julia Child have become household names.

But gourmet cooking is not only a pastime for women. Cooking schools are extremely popular with men, according to Northwestern National Life. And one gourmet shop in Philadelphia says over half its clientele is men.

One strictly limited to the wealthy, gourmet cooking has now spread to every income group. Specialty or quality foods do bring a premium price, so it is possible to spend a lot of money on gourmet cooking. But one can also spend very little, use imagination and still turn out a gourmet meal fit for a king.

Gourmet cookware, once used only by French chefs, can now be found in many homes. Sales of gourmet cooking utensils are up as much as 25% in some stores this year, despite lagging sales in other departments.

A major Chicago store says French and Scandinavian imports and such items as fondue pots and Chinese woks are "selling like hotcakes." Paella pans, fish poachers and clay bakers, at prices from $10 to $20, are selling well.

Omelet pans, souffle dishes, French whisks, butter molds, chopping blocks and scales are some of the other "essentials" of gourmet cookery. Stores often bring in famous chefs such as James Beard or Rudolph Standish to teach customers how too use the cookware.

A true connoisseur says good food must be accompanied by a good wine.

Funds Needed By Junior Stars

Parents of the Junior Babe Ruth All Stars, winners of the district tournament at V.F.W. Stadium last week, met Thursday morning with League President Arthur Bruce and District Director Bob Ralph to discuss fund raising plans for sending the All Stars to next week's state tournament at Lebanon.

The All Stars picked up $300 for winning the District tournament and will need an additional $900 - $1,000 for the four -day event. This includes lodging and meals for the 15 players, two coaches, and the manager.

Senior Babe Ruth All Stars, participating in the state tournament at Boonville raised almost $1,700 last week through contributions from businesses and a road block for donations.

It was pointed out by Ralph, that businessmen have been hit hard this and recent years for donations to finance baseball trips. He said he felt that the boys and their parents should raise the money by other means.

Thes proceeds from last week's district tournament will be turned over to the Junior BabeRuth League for its use in the state tournament.

It was brought out that the Sikeston baseball program, including the Little Leagues and Babe Ruth Leagues was getting too large and too expensive to be operated by commissioners for each league. Parents voiced their hopes that the city would take over the management of part of the program when the proposed baseball complex is completed.

Ralph mentioned the possibility of the city passing a one - fourth cent recreation tax and hiring a full time director to manage a summer, fall, and winter program as Poplar Bluff now has.

It was decided that donations for the Junior Babe Ruth trip to the state tournament, a trip earned by the All Stars with its victory in the District event, would be received and that the boys and their parents should work to obtain additional funds for the trip.

Donations can be mailed to League President Bruce, in care of the Sikeston Police Department, the Sikeston Standard sports department, or to the two radio stations.

The Junior Babe Ruth All Stars play their first game in the state tournament Wednesday.

Starr Complains of Arm Pain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What do you do with a 37year-old quarterback, sidelined the end of last season with a sore throwing arm, who complains of pain in that arm during a passing drill Tuesday?

If the quarterback's name is Bart Starr you send him to a doctor. Quickly.

That's what Green Bay Coach Dan Devine did with Starr, quarterback of the Packers through the glory years of the Vince Lombardi era but sidelined for much of the past three seasons with an assortment of injuries.

Starr left the Green Bay camp Wednesday morning and visited the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. He was back at camp for the team's afternoon practice, but limited his activity to calling plays.

''It was a precautionary move,'' explained Devine, in his first year as coach of the Packers after a highly successful record in the college ranks. ''It was time for another opinion.''

Starr has been undergoing an extensive program of training and rehabilitation in an effort to relieve the soreness in his throwing arm. If his arm does not come around, the Packers will be without a dependable quarterback.

There are three other signalcallers in the Green Bay camp. Zeke Bratkowski, now 39 and attempting a comeback after two years as an assistant coach, is the only one with pro experience. The others are Scott Hunter, a number six draftee from Alabama, and Frank Patrick, a converted tight end.

The Packers traded Don Horn, who had been groomed as Starr's heir apparent, to the Broncos during the off-season.

Eearlier this week they cut Rick Norton, who received a large bonus from Miami to sign as a top draft choice in 1968.

Dallas linebacker Chuck Howley ended a five-day ''retirement'' by signing a oneyear contract with the Cowboys and reporting to camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Meanwhile, second-year running back Duane Thomas said he and the Cowboys are $50,000 apart in contract talks and denounced the management as ''inhuman people'' who are ''trying to crook me.'' Thomas earned $20,000 last year and is asking for $80,000 this time around.

One member of the holdout revolution, running back Larry Brown of Washington, became a former member by signing a multi-year pact with the Redskins. Brown, who paced the National Football League in rushing last year, had reportedly been asking $125,000. Terms of his contract were not revealed.

Two other rebel running backs, Dick Post and Mike Garrett of San Diego, reported to the Chargers' training camp and took part in Wednesday afternoon's workout.

McCovey Socks Grand-Slam HR

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Willie McCovey speaks, everyone listens ... and when he hits, everyone watches.

McCovey, the biggest and strongest brute in San Francisco's power-packed lineup, let his bat do the talking as usual and hit a grand slam that clobbered Pittsburgh 8-4 Wednesday night.

His two-out wallop off Pittsburgh's ace reliever, Dave Giusti, capped a six-run ninth inning that led the Giants back from a 4-2 deficit.

The comeback victory was a lift for San Francisco, trying to beat off Los Angeles' pennant bid in the National League West. It gave the Giants an eight-game lead after the Dodgers lost to Cincinnati 6-2.

In the other games, the Montreal Expos stopped the Houston Astros 5-3; the Chicago Cubs whacked the New York Mets 11-7; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 and the Atlanta Braves took a doubleheader from the San Diego Padres 8-7 in 11 innings and 1-0.

Dick Dietz opened the Giants' rally with a double and only advanced one base on a single to right when Roberto Clemente fired a strike to home plate.

"If Dietz scores, it turns the whole game around then the score would be 4-3 and we'd have to sacrifice the potential tying run on first and second," explained San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox.

But with men on first and third, Alan Gallagher had orders to hit away. He singled home the first run, then the Giants loaded the bases with a walk before Giusti got the next two men.

With two out, Willie Mays walked to force in the tying run and set the table for McCovey.

A three-base error by Mays almost made the Giants' great center fielder the goat.

Clemente's single skipped past Mays in the seventh and the Pittsburgh right-fielder came all the way around to tie the game 2-2. Manny Sanguillen then homered to put the Pirates ahead and they scored another run in the eighth to take a short-lived 4-2 lead.

Gary Nolan scattered seven hits and batted in two runs in a five-run third inning to lead Cincinnati over slumping Los Angeles, which lost its sixth in seven games.

Card Rookie Tames Phils

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reggie Cleveland, a rookie, has twice been deprived of shutouts this season by throwing home run pitches in his role as a St. Louis Cardinal right-hander.

But the strong-armed Canadian has survived in both instances to triumph simply by not walking anyone.

"I guess that's the thing that's on my mind more than anything else," the 23-year-old Cleveland said Wednesday night after stopping the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 on five hits.

Oscar Gamble touched the 6foot-1, 195-pound Cleveland for his fourth home run of the year, a shot clearing the rightfield wall in the fourth inning.

Ahead of the blast, however, Cleveland had set down 11 Phillies in a row following singles by Denny Doyle and Larry Bowa leading off the game.

But after Gamble connected, Cleveland retired 11 more Phils in a row in breezing to his ninth win against eight losses.

Fortified with a good fast ball and slider, Cleveland needed only 95 pitches to set the Phils down on the Gamble hit and singles also by Mike Ryan and Willie Montanez.

He reached a 3-0 count only on Larry Bowa in the ninth inning and recorded his major league high of 10 strikeouts while facing only 32 batters.

"It seems like everytime you walk somebody he scores," Cleveland said. "That was really on my mind when I went 3-0 on Bowa. I figured 'Gee, I've come this far; why should I give them anything.'"

Aside from the pitching performance, Cleveland also contributed two singles to a 15-hit Cardinals attack, lofted a sacrifice fly as one of his two RBI and scored a run.

"I've always figured I could hit pretty well," he said. "One other game I had two hits and three RBI."

Other lusty Cardinal hitting came from Lou Brock, who had four singles, and Matty Alou, whose three hits drove in as many runs.

The Cards, after Gamble's homer tied the score at 1-1, broke in front on Joe Torre's triple scoring Alou in the fifth.

Alou singled home Dal Maxvill and Cleveland to make it 41 off Barry Lersch (4-9) in the sixth. Cleveland's sacrifice fly and a double by Alou capped the scoring in the eighth.

QB Job Open

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals opened their training camp at Lake Forest College this morning, with the battle for No. 1 quarterback shaping up as highlight.

Head coach Bob Hollway, who assumed the Cardinal reins in February, said after signing 6-foot-1, 200-pound Pete Beathard the 29-year-old former American Football League star would be given full opportunity to win the position.

Beathard, acquired in January of 1970 in exchange for Charley Johnson, sat on the bench through most of last season while Jim Hart directed the Cardinals to an 8-5-1 record.

Before that, the product of Southern California had called signals for the Kansas City Chiefs and the Houston Oilers of the AFL.

Hollway, surveying a young but experienced Cardinals squad, said emphasis would be placed on pass rushing in an attempt to put the team on top the National Conference's East Division.

He had neither high praise nor criticism for the quarterbacking of Hart but indicated the team must attain a more consistent offense.

Off-season deals instigated by Hollway included that for Rodger Bird, a fleet return specialist, and for Homer Jones, a once-prominent wide receiver.

Some of the better scrambling for positions could be that for linebacking posts, considered the backbone of Minnesota Vikings defenses Hollway once coached.

Challengers for positions among rookies include high draft choices Norm Thompson, Dan Dierdorf and Larry Wlingham, who are on the College All-Stars squad drilling at nearby Evanston, Ill.

The Cardinals in 1970 headed the East Division until losing their final three games. Their accomplishments for the season included three straight shutouts highlighted by a 35-0 verdict over National Conference champion Dallas in the Cotton Bowl.

About 50 candidates among a squad of 74 were expected to report to Hollway and his staff today. Remainder of the squad is due to report Sunday.

The Cardinals have three weeks to prepare for their exhibition opener Aug. 14 against Houston in St. Louis. The team's regular season opener is Sept. 19 against the Washington Redskins.

AHRA Gateway Nationals Set at International Raceway

ST. LOUIS— The first national drag racing meet ever held in Missouri or Illinois, the American Hot Rod Association's Gateway Nationals, will convene at St. Louis International Raceway July 30, 31 and Aug. 1

More than 500 of the nation's finest drag racers, including Don "Big Daddy" Garlits and Gene Snow, will be featured in the battle for more than $50,000 in prize money and an additional $50,000 in contingencies and manufacturer awards.

St. Louis International Raceway, located five minutes from the Gateway Arch, is currently undergoing a complete renovation, including the lengthening of the former one-eighth mile strip to a quarter-mile distance.

Wayne Meinert, track president, also announced that new grandstands have been constructed and the track's facilities are equipped to handle more than 25,000 racing fans each day. New lighting and sound systems have been installed and crews are paving the pit areas with asphalt.

This will be the seventh of the 10-race AHRA Grand American Series of professional drag racing. The previous six were held in Long Beach, Calif.; Phoenix, Ariz.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Baton Rouge, La.; and Denver.

Last week's Marion County (Ohio) International Raceway meet was postponed to Aug. 27, 28 and 29 because of inclement weather.

Heading the list of pre-entered drivers in the AA/fueled dragster class is Garlits, of Seffner, Fla., the winningest driver in the history of drag racing, not only in the number of national titles (seven) but in the amount of money, also. Garlits' last victory in Denver enabled the 29-year-old pilot to move into the frontrunning position in the AHRA points chase.

Garlits, who almost retired from racing last year when an accident resulted in the loss of part of his right foot, also won the Fort Worth race and finished second in the Long Beach meet. He currently holds the AHRA elapsed time record of AA/fuelers--6.55 seconds--for the quarter-mile distance.

John Wiebe of Newton, Kan., last year's AHRA World Champion, is second in the points parade and was the Baton Rouge winner. He is the AHRA speed record holder with a clocking of 227.84 miles an hour.

Gary Cochran of Fountain Valley, Calif., is third because of victories at Long Beach and Phoenix; and next in line is Jim Nicoll of Spring Valley, Calif., the West Palm Beach victor.

Snow, of Fort Worth, has captured four funny car titles, and has a commanding lead over Mart Higginbotham of Dallas, Texas, and Dick Harrell of Kansas City, Kan., the winners of the other two races. Funny cars are fiberglassed replicas of the most popular Detroit-manufactured cars and have power plants strong enough to propel these sleek nitro fuel-burning cars into the six-seconds category consistently.

Professional drivers in the pro-stock class, as well as drivers in competition, street and top stock eliminators; GT-1, and GT-2 eliminators; and two classes of motorcycles, will also be vying for points and prize money during the three-day affair.

Gates will open at 3 p.m. Friday with time trials, official AHRA record runs and qualifying sessions. Saturday's agenda gets underway at noon and a special AA/fuel and funny car program will begin at 8 p.m. with a $6,000 purse at stake.

Sunday's finale will begin at 8 a.m. with further qualifying sessions, and final eliminations will start at 2 p.m.

Tickets can be picked up at the gate or any of the following Sears stores: Northwest Plaza, Kingshighway, Grand Avenue, and Crestwood Plaza in Missouri; and East St. Louis, Belleville and Alton in Illinois.

The track is located at the intersection of Interstate 70 and Illinois Rt. 203, Granite City Exit North.

Further information is available by contacting John Durbin or Mike Hayes at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge (618) 345-1530 in Collinsville.

Apollo Target Rated Pilot's Nightmare

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The lunar target of Apollo 15 is a pilot's nightmare and a scientist's dream.

The landing site is a small valley surrounded on three sides by the highest mountains of the moon and bordered on the fourth side by a 1,200-footdeep gorge with treacherously sloping banks.

It is located farther north than any astronaut has ever been, just on the lower inside edge of the man on the moon's right eye.

The 12-day Apollo 15 mission is scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla., next Monday, July 26. If all goes well, four days later astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin will land on the moon.

Their trajectory toward lunar landing is like that of a basketball swishing through a net without touching the rim of the basket.

They will slide down a steep landing pattern which will carry them over a mountain pass and then drop them almost vertically for the last 20 feet into the valley.

If the flight path is out of line, or too low, or short, Scott and Irwin face the danger of smashing Falcon, their lunar module, into the Apennine Mountains which guard the north, east and south of the valley.

If the flight path is long, the moon lander could topple into the gorge, called Hadley Rille, or touch down on the wrong side of the mile—wide gully and block the astronauts from their prime geology objectives.

To compound the problem, nobody is precisely sure what the surface is like at the target point. Photographs taken of the area give only about 20 meters of resolution, much coarser than photos of previous landing sites.

Scott, the Apollo 15 commander who'll be doing the actual flying, shrugs away the danger of the landing.

"I don't anticipate any problem in the landing area," he says, noting that high resolution photos of nearby areas indicate the landing site should be a fairly smooth plain.

Besides, says the astronaut, the Hadley-Apennine site is worth the risk—the area is a geological gold mine.

"I don't see any place else on the moon you can find with so much geological variety," he says.

Scott and Irwin will be able to sample five different rock formations during their three surface excursions.

With all the places there are to visit, why does the boss always mention only one place he wishes you would go to?

Travel is broadening—especially after sitting through a cross-country trip by bus.

Frankly Speaking

By Senator Tom Eagleton

AMPHETAMINE CONTROLS STILL NEEDED

Since last year I have been urging the passage of legislation to tighten control over the production and distribution of amphetamines, a much-abused class of dangerous drugs.

Earlier this month the Justice Department did place many of these drugs under tighter control by administrative order, but this action fell short of accomplishing what needed to be done.

Not surprisingly, several drug companies filed requests for hearings to appeal the tighter controls on certain of their amphetamine products -- beginning a process that could have delayed enforcement of the Justice Department's order for years.

Following an announcement that a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee intended to hold hearings on my bill to tighten controls through legislation, all but one company withdrew their petitions.

20% Not Regulated

The one appeals hearing still to be held will be on Eskatrol, the largest selling diet pill in the country and a product of Smith Kline and French Laboratories. This pill accounts for about 20% of the amphetamine sales market, or $11-12 million in annual sales. Its amphetamine ingredient can be easily separated from the other components. Nonetheless, because Smith Kline andFrench decided to file for a hearing, Eskatrol is excluded from the Justice Department order.

Justice Department personnel have assured me that hearings on these products will be scheduled soon. But it is now possible that Eskatrol will remain under relatively lax control for as much as two years while Smith Kline and French pursues its appeal -- all the while manufacturing as much Eskatrol as it wants.

The Judiciary Subcommittee hearings on my bill were held July 15 and 16. At the hearings a former "speed freak," or heavy amphetamine user, testified that Eskatrol as among the legitimate trade name products that commonly find their way through the illegal drug market to young people on our city streets.

Swedish Experience

The second major deficiency of the Justice Department's order is that it fails to include two amphetamine -like stimulants, Ritalin and Preludin.

Ritalin attracted public attention a few months ago when the news media reported that this drug was being administered to children in the public schools to "control" disruptive behavior. Preludin, a diet pill, is probably less familiar to the American public, although an epidemic of Preludin abuse in Sweeden brought it to the forefront of attention there, causing it to be banned in 1965. Ritalin was voluntarily withdrawn in Sweden by the manufactures three years later.

Those of us with the responsibility for protecting the public against the hazards of drug abuse cannot afford to take incomplete measures. Legislation of the type I propose is still very much needed.

Fourteen students at Kelly participated in the presentation, a modern dance interpretation of the history of the United States, to the music of the "Armed Forces Suite."

Dancers were Betty Jane Halter, Janice Wright, Terry Simms, Chris Nebel, Charlene Urhahn, Dorothy Heuring, Rosanne Scherer, Nancy Miller, Valeria Diebold, Patti Vetter, Ruth Ann Westrich, Nancy LeGrand, Debbie Hampton, and LaDonna Margrabe.

The flag ceremony, first presented at the state FHA meeting in Jefferson City this spring, received a standing ovation. The group was requested to perform at the national meeting by Mrs. Marie David Huff, Jefferson City, adviser for FHA chapters in Missouri.

'Cushy Job' Bothers Astronaut While Friends Dying in Vietnam

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— It bothers Alfred M. Worden that while he's in a "cushy job" training to go to the moon, his friends and former classmates are getting shot at and killed in Vietnam.

Worden, a 29-year-old trained fighter pilot, who has never seen combat, says the contrast between his job and the Vietnam fighting "leaves you with a bad feeling."

"I don't like the idea of my roommate from college being sent over there to fight a war while I'm here in a cushy job," says the West Point graduate.

Worden, an Air Force major, says if he hadn't been selected for the space program "I would be volunteering for Vietnam."

Worden, a balding, fast-talking native of Jackson, Mich., was graduated from West Point in 1955. He got his commission in the Air Force and became a skillful fighter pilot. After four years, however, he found he was more interested in airplanes as instruments of science than as weapons of war.

He went back to school in 1961, earned a master of science degree and then spent more than two years learning to be a test pilot and training other pilots. He was good enough to be selected in 1966, for astronaut training.

Worden's first trip into space, as command module pilot on Apollo 15, is scheduled to begin with launch from Cape Kennedy of Monday. It will be flown in the long shadow cast by the deaths in Russia of three cosmonauts. The fatalities emphasize the danger of space flight.

"We're not fighting a war," says Worden of himself and his fellow spacemen, "but, damn if our risks aren't as great as the ones combat pilots take."

Astronauts, he said once, "feel that anything can happen, but space flight is worth the risk."

Worden, unmarried, enjoys an active social life. He has escorted television stars in New York and secretaries in Houston.

"He's more interested in showing you a good time than in showing you about who he is," says one of his girl friends. "He's not really handsome, but he's got a way about him that's rare."

Worden was married to the former Pamela Ellen Vander Beek, Bayside, N.Y. Their marriage ended quietly in what one friend said was "a very, very civilized divorce."

The astronaut's two daughters, Merrill, 13, and Alison, 11, live with their mother almost within sight of Worden's apartment.

Not Even Plane Crash Dimmed Irwin's Yen to Be Astronaut

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — James B. Irwin Jr. decided 10 years ago he wasn't going to let a little thing like an airplane crash keep him from going to the moon.

Irwin, a 41-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, is the lunar module pilot on the Apollo 15 mission scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy Monday.

He started working for an astronaut assignment almost from the day he learned the country was getting into the manned space business.

"It just seemed like that's where the future was," says Irwin.

Irwin earned important astronaut credentials when he added a master's degree from the University of Michigan to his bachelor of science degree from the Naval Acaedmy and then graduated from the Air Force Experimental Test Pilot School.

He was ready to apply for the space program in 1961 when a casual weekend training flight ended in near disaster and put him in a hospital bed unable to walk, talk or even remember.

Irwin was flying as instructor with a student pilot at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. They were cruising at 300 feet in a routine air traffic pattern one moment and spinning toward earth the next.

"The student was flying the airplane at the time," says Irwin.

"Apparently he stalled it out in the traffic pattern."

The light plane suddenly rolled into a spin, at too low an altitude for Irwin to recover control.

Irwin broke both legs, his jaw and suffered a severe concussion which wiped out his memory. Recovery was long and difficult.

Irwin was out of the hospital in three months, but he was still grounded. The Air Force, he says, has a rule that if a concussion results in a loss of memory the pilot is grounded for 12 months.

The Air Force pilot was flying again 14 months after the accident. And a few months later he graduated from the elite Air Force Aerospace Research Pilot School.

Irwin, the oldest son of a plumber, was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., and graduated from high school in Salt Lake City. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Irwin, now live in San Jose, Calif.

The astronaut said his father, a World War I veteran, encouraged him to go after a military career. Irwin applied for the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, but was accepted instead by the Naval Academy. He graduated in 1951 and took his commission inthe Air Force.

Irwin met his wife, the former Mary Ellen Monroe of Corvallis, Ore., while he was in San Jose for the Christmas holidays.

They married in 1958 and have four children, Joy, 11; Jill, 10; James, 8; and Jan 6.

Quiet, reserved and calm, Irwin and his family live quietly, spending most of his off hours in home-oriented activity. They live in a modernistic home which is surrounded by lush landscaping, the handiwork of his pretty wife.

Advice Against Movie Remakes Still Unheeded

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "You should never remake great pictures," Samuel Goldwyn once advised fellow producer David O. Selznick. "You can never do them better the second time. The thing to do is remake your flops. Then you can improve on your errors."

Selznick didn't follow Goldwyn's advice. He went ahead and remade "A Farewell to Arms," a well-remembered 1933 film with Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper. Selznick's 1958 version with his wife Jennifer Jones and Rock Hudson was a flop. It proved to be the producer's last movie.

The Goldwyn counsel is today being ignored by a new generation of film makers. In their search for screen subjects th producers are sifting through the studio vaults for properties that once captured audiences and might do so today.

The record is by no means forbidding. American-International threw caution to the winds by remaking "Wuthering Heights," a 1939 Goldwyn classic starring Laurence Olivier, Merle Oberon and David Niven. The new version captured no great praise from the critics. But it did enough business to rank as American-International's No. 1 grosser.

The company then went on the prowl for other classics (which are conveniently in public domain and require no story purchase). "The House of Seven Gables" is now being filmed in England (it was last made in 1940). Also in the works: "Camille," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Les Miserables" and "The Scarlet Letter."

The new management of MGM set on a course to recapture some of the famed company's earlier magic. A remake of "Trader Horn (1931) has been announced. Also a musicalized "Tom Sawyer." The Mark Twain Classic previously starred Jack Pickford in 1917, Jackie Coogan in 1930, and Tommy Kelly in 1938.

Ross Hunter has announced a musical version of the Frank Capra film of 1937, "Lost Horizon."

Remakes sometimes succeed— "Romeo and Juliet," "A Place in the Sun". But the record of failures is overwhelming: "Mutiny on the Bounty, "Stagecoach," 'Goodybye, Mr. Chips," "My Man Godfrey," "Barrets of Wimpole Street," "It happened One Night," etc. Still, that doesn't stop producers from trying.

STREET SCENE in Saigon shows a side effect of war on the city once known as both the Pearl and the Paris of the Orient. The steady inflow of people from the countryside during the war years has swollen the population to some three million and created vast shanty residential areas, such as Ngo Duc Ke Street.

WARN CHILDREN ABOUT PLANTS THAT POISON

Plant	Toxic Part	Symptoms
Hyacinth, Narcissus, Daffodil	Bulbs	Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea. May be fatal.
Oleander	Leaves, Branches	Extremely poisonous. Affects the heart, produces severe digestive upset and has caused death.
Poinsettia	Leaves	Fatal. One leaf can kill a child.
Mistletoe	Berries	Fatal. Both children and adults have died from eating the berries.
Lily of the valley	Leaves, Flowers	Irregular heart beat and pulse, usually accompanied by digestive upset and mental confusion.
Iris	Underground stems	Severe, but not usually serious, digestive upset.
Rhubarb	Leaf blade	Fatal. Large amounts of raw or cooked leaves can cause convulsions, coma, followed rapidly by death.
Wisteria	Seeds, Pods	Mild to severe digestive upset. Many children are poisoned by this plant.
Laurels, Rhododendron, Azaleas	All parts	Fatal. Produces nausea and vomiting, depression, difficult breathing, prostration and coma.
Jessamine	Berries	Fatal. Digestive disturbance and nervous symptoms.
Yew	Berries, Foliage	Fatal. Foliage more toxic than berries. Death is usually sudden without warning symptoms.
Oaks	Foliage, Acorns	Affects kidneys gradually. Symptoms appear only after several days or weeks. Takes a large amount for poisoning. Children should not be allowed to chew on acorns.

More than 700 species of plants are known to have caused death or illness.

Included in these 700 are some of nature's most delicate creations: the oleander bush, the lily-of-the-valley, and the rhododendron.

Each year an estimated 12,000 children ingest these plants and others like them. A Seattle study revealed that 10 percent of child poisoning cases observed were of youngsters who had eaten toxic plants, and that in six percent of these cases, the children's parents had no idea the plants were dangerous.

The leaves of the lovely oleander bush, an indoor plant, contain a deadly heart stimulant that, if eaten, could kill a child. Some people have died merely from eating steaks that had been speared on oleander twigs and roasted over an open fire.

Of greatest danger to children are the small attractive berries they find in their yards or in fields near their homes. The berries often look like wild fruit — a mouth-watering delight. Danger — their juice may be deadly.

In Ohio, one summer, a little girl prepared a play luncheon in the back yard. On a miniature plate she put an apple, a radish and some berries she had picked from a shrub growing in her mother's rock garden. Four hours later she lapsed into a coma and within seven hours after the luncheon she died.

An autopsy showed that the berries she had eaten were from the Daphne mezereum plant. It is cultivated in back yards and also grows wild in thickets throughout the country. In early spring it has white or purple flowers that are followed by small red or yellow berries containing a corrosive poison that produces severe burns in the mouth and digestive tract. Only a few berries are enough to kill a child.

In Tacoma, Washington, a young girl, who was thought to have choked on a piece of candy, died suddenly. A careful study of the case revealed that the girl had eaten several berries from the poisonous nightshade bush growing near her home.

This vine-like plant, found throughout the country, stretches along the ground or grows upright to a height of about two feet. Its berries, which grow in clusters, are most toxic when unripe; when they ripen to a bright yellow, orange, and red, they become the least poisonous part of the plant.

Another berry found to be deadly only in its unripe form is that of the Lantana camara or red sage, which grows extensively in the South. A few years ago 17 children in Florida were treated for ingestion of this berry; four of them were hospitalized with severe poisoning and one girl died a short while after eating the berries.

Of nearly equal attraction to children are the various parts of fruit trees — the twigs of cherry trees that release cyanide when eaten, and the leaf of the peach tree which contains hydrocyanic acid, one of the five most dangerous poisons known. Five children became ill after drinking "tea" brewed with hot water and peach leaves.

A garden that contains potatoes and tomatoes presents a further threat to the child. The foliage and vines of both plants contain alkaloid poisons that can, when swallowed, create nervous disorder and stomach upset.

Most dangerous of all plants in the vegetable garden is rhubarb. Its stalk, commonly used in baking and cooking, of course is not toxic, but the leaf blade, containing oxalic acid which crystallizes in the kidneys, causes severe damage if a number of leaves are eaten.

Castor bean seeds, sold in any garden store for about 25 cents a packet, contain the powerful blood poison ricin that could kill a child. The beans are a mottled black and brown and resemble a beetle. Children often play with them, and jewelry manufacturers make necklaces from them. If they are chewed or swallowed, they become deadly.

It is essential that children and adults understand the dangers involved in eating plants they are unfamiliar with. Those growing in the classroom or around the home should be identified in every way before they are appreciated for something other than their natural beauty!

For more information about protecting your children from potentially dangerous plants, send for the free booklet, "Plants That Poison" by writing to: Corporate Communications, Geigy Agricultural Chemicals, 5300 Edina Industrial Boulevard, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55435.

AMERICANS HAVE NO MONOPOLY on violent protest. A shareholders' session of Japan's giant Mitsubishi Heavy Industries turned into a free-for-all. The enraged man, at left and other pro-management shareholders clashed with members of Japanese Peace-for-Vietnam Committee, right, wearing skeleton masks bearing the Mitsubishi symbol to protest the firm's production of war material.

FAMILY REUNION

Your Correspondent took a short vacation to see relatives in northwest Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. SAmuel McClellan and family left Morley bright and early Saturday morning, July 3rd. We arrived in St. Joseph that evening in time to have supper at my sisters, Mr. and MRs. Frank Waller and family. Then went on to King City to the Manor Nursing home to visit with Samuel's mother Mrs. Bertie McClellan. Rather late Saturday night we reached our destination, my parents Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Fish were waiting up. They have a farm home near Hatfield. There were 6 fewer heart deaths in Scott County in 1970. Our hospital intensive care is beginning to pay dividends.

On the other hand, lung cancers were the highest cause of malignancy deaths, with 5 of them in females. There were 5 more lung cancer deaths than the number killed from motor vehicles. Deaths from emphysema (7 from 5) and cirrhosis of the liver (5 from 2) were both up from 1969. Could the figures be telling us something about cigarette smoking and the drinking of alcohol?

Lightning Flash Starts House Fire

50 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1921

Fairview--Misses Ruth Moser and Floy Randolph spent Sunday with Pearl Jones.

Fine showers fell here Tuesday afternoon and night and were rather general throughout the Sikeston district. These rains were of untold benefit to growing corn and other crops and also brought relief from the oppressive heat which had prevailed here for the past few weeks.

Canalou--H. O. Kerstner was in Sikeston Wednesday.

Matthews--Mrs. Louis Hunott was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday.

40 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1931

Electa Shankle, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shankle, living near McMullin, was painfully injured Monday afternoon while playing with neighborhood children at the home. The children had driven large spikes into a tree using the nails as "steps" in the climb to the first limb. From this height they jumped onto a bag swing. One of the spikes gave way and the child slipped to the ground cutting one leg severely on one of the lower nails. Several stitches were necessary to close the opening.

The Standard congratulates Mr. and Mrs. Ray Marshall upon the birth of a healthy baby boy, who arrived Saturday afternoon, July 18. Mrs. Marshall and son are at the home of Mrs. Elmos Taylor, sister of Mrs. Marshall. Mrs. Marshall was formerly Miss Katherine Hanner.

A blinding flash of lightning, followed by a deafening thunder clap, started a fire at the home of Mrs. Fannie Matthews, a widow on Vernon avenue this city, early Thursday morning. Persons living in this section of Sikeston claim that they were abruptly aroused from sleep by the loud report.

Mrs. Lillie Taylor, died at the home of her son, Lovey Taylor, in Matthews Monday afternoon. She became ill Monday and lived only a few hours.

30 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1941

A daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Tierney of Route 3, Monday, has been named Phyllis Ann.

Four youths passed tests Tuesday night at the Sikeston Municipal swimming pool, qualifying them for senior rank in Red Cross water safety and lifesaving, Wilbur C. Ensor, chairman of this phase of activity of the Scott County chapter, announced Wednesday. Those satisfactorily completing the week-long annual training course were Joe Arbaugh, Billy Bess, Joe Cooley and Harry Gross.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Christian at Sikeston General Hospital Wednesday.

Preliminary work has started, preparatory to construction of a six-room brick colonial, two-story house on North Kingshighway for J. S. Kevil. The residence will be constructed south of the McMullin apartments.

Better Food Labeling Sought

ORAN— Abram Hirschowitz, head of the Scott County Voter's League, said yesterday he is preparing a proposal to summit to the Missouri Division of Public Health and Welfare and the Food and Drug Administration, calling for "truth in labeling" procedures on food.

Hirschowitz, a native of Oran and former Oran mayor, said his proposal says that bread should be stamped with the date it was baked, milk should contain a butter fat reading on the label, and canned goods should list the amount of the contents that are food products and the amount that is water.

"We need to have a law that will end the coding on labels," he said. "Housewives can't read the codes or understand exactly what they are buying."

Hirschowitz said it would be useless to ask local bakers to stamp dates on their labels, and said that it should be done on a larger level.

Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice. (Psalm 96:12)

PRAYER: O God, increase in us a sensitivity to the beauty of the world around. Your touch is in every flower, tree, rock, and stream, reminding us that the earth is Yours and all that is in it. Amen.

It's The Law

A Quiet Marriage Agreement

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Horace was a real active politician. Running for office, he also found time to run after one of his more prettier female workers. When he caught her, however, and took improper liberties with her, she threatened to call the police.

To diswade her, Horace offered to marry her. And, he did. Thus, he lost his freedom and three weeks later he also lost the election. Thoroughly defeated, he started an action to have his marriage annulled.

"I was forced into it against my will," he told the judge. ""My wife threatened to have me arrested knowing that it would ruin my chances of being elected. It was like holding a gun to my head."

"If anyone was guilty of skulduggery," retorted the wife, "It was Horace. He married me to keep my mouth shut. If he got tricked, he tricked himself."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you give the defeated candidate back his freedom?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that under circumstances such as in this case, when a man elects to get married in order to avoid criminal prosecution, he cannot later say he was forced into the marriage. He had an option, noted the judge. He could have decided to fight the charges instead of deciding to propose.

was driving in the 100 block of North Main at 4 a.m. when an unidentified man in a light blue car attempted to force her from the street. She said she avoided the man and turned west on East Malone but the man continued to follow her and give this account:

When she had traveled to Leonard's Shell Station, the man pulled beside her car and slowly forced her to a halt. She said the man got from his car, walked to her car and told her to "get out and come with me." She refused and began beating the man with her hands until he moved away from her car and she again drove west on East Malone.

The woman told police she then turned into the parking lot of Malone and Hyde but the man had followed and blocked her exit. When he got from his car the second time, she fled on foot into Malone and Hyde for assistance.

She returned a moment later with help, but the man had left taking her purse and car keys.

Egyptian and Libyan
Embassies Surrounded

CAIRO (AP) — Sudanese troops and tanks surrounded the Egyptian and Libyan embassies in Khartoum today, following the seizure of two leaders of the new Sudanese regime on their way home from London in a British airliner forced to land in Libya, the Iraqi news agency reported.

The BOAC VC10 was buzzed by Libyan fighters before landing at Bengazi airport, passengers reported. Its landing followed by hours the unexplained crash over Saudi Arabia of a special Iraqi airliner bound for Khartoum with an Iraqi delegation to the new Sudanese regime.

Libya's government radio reported possible fighting in the Sudanese capital "between rival units of the Sudanese army or as a result of a civil insurrection."

It said Sudan's Omdurman radio was broadcasting "appeals to the people," but did not explain the appeals or say what they contained.

In London, the BOAC spokesman said Col. Babikr el-Nur Osman, elected president of the Revolutionary Council after a coup last Monday, and council member Mohammed Magoub, left the jet after it made the unscheduled landing at Benina Airport in Benghazi.

The plane, with all its 105 other passengers, aboard, later returned to London.

Earlier, the leader of the Sudanese coup, Maj. Hashem Atta, told a mass rally in Khartoum he was undertaking a sweeping purge of supporters of the ousted regime.

A high-ranking Egyptian government delegation has been in Khartoum since Wednesday but it is not known whether they were in the Egyptian Embassy.

An official at Jidda Airport's said the Iraqi plane went down in dense morning fog and investigators have reached no conclusion whether the craft exploded in the air.

He said 11 persons were killed and seven survived, including the pilot. Baghdad radio said several of the victims were members of the official delegation. Three were identified as Mohammed Suleiman, a member of the ruling Baathist party leadership; Salah Saleh, a member of the Baathist military bureau, and Hammond elAzzawi, a Foreign Ministry official identkfied as an ambassador.

Arab League sources in Cairo reported the Iraqi plane explosion conincided with a chain of arrests in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad involving nearly 50 army officers and government officials. There appeared to be no connection between the Iraqi plane crash and the landing of the BOAC VC10 jetliner at Benghazi.

A BOAC spokesman said a third member of the Sudanese junta, Maj. Farouk Osman Hamadallah, also boarded the flight in London Wednesday night. But airline spokesmen and passengers were unable to say with certainty whether he, too, got off in Benghazi.

El Nur had been in London for medical treatment.

Marshal Resigns at Lilbourn

LILBOURN — Mayor Jimmy Dambach has announced the board of aldermen accepted the resignation of Johnny Martin as marshal at a meeting Tuesday.

Marshal Martin resigned Aug. 1 to accept a better paying job.

The board authorized advertising for applicants to fill the position.

The board voted a $25 per month raise for the Water Commissioner Johnnie Barnes and the Street Commissioner Charley Ross. The raises become effective Aug. 1.

The city tax rate was set at $2.65 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year.

The board accepted the sketch plan for the city as prepared by the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission of Malden. The annual assessment of $143.62 by that office was approved for payment.

A request by See-Mor Cable Television, Sikeston, for a higher monthly service charge was not approved. The request of the firm was for a $1 increase in their charge to a $6 monthly fee for one connection. The firm had originally promised service by October of 1970 and now indicates it hopes to have service available before January of 1972.

The board approved the pouring of a new concrete floor for the fire truck garage section of the city hall and a small unpaved area in front of the city hall. Repairs to the collector's office have been completed.

The mayor and city clerk were authorized to enter into an engineering contract with Williamson and Associates of St. Louis for the preparation of plans, estimates of cost, and other engineering services in the enlargement of the water treatment plant and in the extension of water lines within the city.

Cape Man Sues Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A 24-year-old Air Force sergeant from Cape Girardeau, Mo., has filed a suit for $25,000 in U. S. District Court against the City of Omaha and two unnamed policemen as the result of alleged "unprovoked" attacks by officers near Elmwood Park July 8.

Sgt. John Mueller claims he was the target of "an unprovoked" attack after he and his wife, Tanya, 22, had attended a rock concert at the park.

The policemen were listed in the suit as "John Doe and Richard Roe."

In the suit, Sgt. Mueller asserted that one policeman smashed the windshield in his car and broke out another window and that when he got out of his car and asked the reason he was beaten on the head.

The suit says 25 stitches were taken to close the wound in his right eye and Mueller's sight may be permanently impared. It listed damages to the car of $400.

Mueller said he is a graduate of the University of Missouri Journalism School. He is a Vietnam veteran.

The suit charges the city is liable because the police were improperly trained and not under control. The incident occurred on one of three nights of clashes between police and young persons in the park area.

A similar suit has been filed by an Omaha TV cameraman.

Dexter Mayor Goes to Bat For Water Bonds

DEXTER— The city of Dexter has "big trouble" with water and "a lot of people don't believe we have a (water) problem," Mayor Willis Conner said today.

The mayor explained that the city has been having trouble with transmission lines, water treatment facilities and storage capacity.

Residents of Dexter will vote on a $425,000 general obligation bond issue Aug. 31 to provide water improvement for the city.

The water improvement proposal, if passed, will provide two new water wells, a new 500,000 gallon storage tank, and a new 1,000 gallon per minute water treatment plant on the north side of town.

The mayor commented:

"Everybody had better be in favor of it. The one thing we can't get along without is water. Oh yes, I'm very much in favor of it."

City Clerk G. B. McCracken said "we're going to try this thing again".

Residents voted the first time on the water improvement proposal in November of 1969 and defeated it by three votes. In early 1970, citizens voted on the proposal again and "it was defeated pretty badly," Conner recalled.

"The reason it was defeated," Conner said, "was because some claimed it (water improvement) would benefit only a few people in a certain area."

"This is not true," he said. "The water improvement will be for the whole town."

Conner commented on the problems the city has been having with water:

"Three times in the last three months we have had malfunctions at night with the (water) pump. About six weeks ago, a tree blew down over lines to the service pumps. The city was without water for some time."

He said the city's water treatment plant pumped water at a 300 gallon per minute clip in 1944 and now "it's supposed to go at 1,000 gallons per minute."

"I'm certain it's not doing it now," Conner said.

He said the plant has been in operation since 1914 and has been remodeled three times, most recently in 1957.

"If the water proposal is not passed, a possible alternative would be to ration water or raise the heck on the water rates," the mayor said.

He added that he is "not in favor on raising rates" but "we're going to have to do something."

LIBERAL SMEAR ON MAYOR DALEY

The liberal media cannot stand a tough-minded, conservative mayor, especially if he is an "ethnic." Two examples are Mayor Daley of Chicago and former Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo, who is now the Democratic mayoral nominee in Philadelphia.

Mike Royko, a Chicago newspaperman, has done a biography of Mayor Daley that has given the Liberal Establishment an occasion for smearing the mayor. The Liberal Establishment is doing so with reviews of the book entitled "Boss."

The noted Chicago sociologist, Andrew Greeley, writes that he is unaware of a single review of "Boss" in a major national journal that was not written by a sworn public enemy of the mayor. The review editors of these journals deliberately turned the book over to men who could be counted on to endorse Royko's view of things. Greeley adds that he has joined a group called "Scholars for Daley" because "I was furious at the obvious and blatant anti-Irish tone of the university community's opposition to Daley."

Nor is it surprising that the Liberal Establishment should also attack Philadelphia's Rizzo. A recent smear job on Rizzo was written by Lenora Berson, part of a husband-and-wife team of the left-liberal faction who operate in the 8th ward in central Philadelphia. The article imputed that Rizzo was anti-semitic. Congressman Joshua Eilberg of that city defended Rizzo against this false charge.

New York's Mario Procaccino and Boston's Louise Hicks have also been objects of ethnic -cultural denigration by the Liberal Establishment. The Liberal Establishment is really ultra-conservative in its on-going attacks on Irish and Italian ethnics. Their concern about antisemitism is so much pious posturing.

According to an Idaho Power Company publication, last year, electric utilities spent more than $250 million on air quality control -- more than any other industry allocated for air and water quality controls combined. Between 1950 and 1960, electric utilities bought 90 per cent of all the air quality control equipment sold in the United States. This clearly indicated the extreme concern of the electric industry toward helping to preserve our natural surroundings.

ROME OR CEASAR?

One of the most titanic struggles of the 89th Congress took place over the question of repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Union professionals and the politicians beholden to them mounted a fierce, no-holds-barred drive to expunge 14(b) from the books. This would have stripped states of their authority to enact Right to Work laws protecting individual freedom.

It didn't work. An aroused American public rallied to the banner carried by then Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) and succeeded in quashing the union boss drive for more power.

Why had Dirksen done it? In his own flowery words: "I love Caesar, but I love Rome more." To Dirksen, the country was more important than a President paying off a political debt to union officials.

He knew the stakes in the battle were enormous. One nationally syndicated columnist noted that union bosses would have netted $15 million in forced dues immediately upon repeal of 14(b). "Principle be damned," said the columnist, "they want the $15 million."

But Rome, not Caesar triumphed. Union professionals lost the $15 million with which to pursue additional political power — experts estimate union bosses spend 85 % of their time politicking. And AFL-CIO President Meany candidly admits, "You just can't have too much power."

It's the source of that power — the compulsory union shop — that should be of concern to all Americans. It is being wielded by the Caesars of 1971 in a way that threatens the very underpinnings of Rome. This is understood by Rep. Philip Crane (R-Ill.), who has introduced legislation to correct the situation and testified in its behalf before Congress just this week.

As Senator Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.) put it recently, "The use by union professionals of massive amounts of compulsory dues for politics must be stopped if our representative form of government is to be preserved."

Unless that monstrous political machinery of the modern day Caesars is brought under control, our entire political system could be engulfed. Recognizing this, Sen. Fannis and Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) have co-authored an amendement to the campaign election reform bill that will likely come up for debate on the floor of the United States Senate soon. The amendment would deny tax-exempt status to any organization, including unions, which use compulsory dues money directly or indirectly for political purposes.

It's an important step in the right direction, one that will provide an acid test for the 100 members of the "world's greatest deliberative body." And when the votes have been recorded, the American public will know which Senators place the interests of the country above the interests of a handful of union bosses made powerful through the compulsory union shop.

Rome or Caesar? We'll know soon enough.

CONTROLLING ACTS OF GOD

Virgin Islanders have set aside Sunday, July 25, as Supplication Day, to pray for deliverance from hurricanes. At the end of the season in late October they celebrate Deliverance Day to give thanks for being spared -- and they have been for almost 40 years. Until recently this method of warding off destructive weather was as good as any other. Now scientists in the United States, Russian and other countries are making limited progress in scientific weather modification. "Our theories aren't perfect, and we still have a lot to learn, but weather control is further advanced than the public generally realizes," Robert M. White, director of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), told the Wall Street Journal (July 12, 1971).

Scientists at the NOAA's experimental meterological laboratory in Miami have had partial success this spring with a cloud-seeding program aimed at alleviating the Florida drought. In the coming weeks scientists will attempt to weaken the force of potential hurricanes with a seeding method similar to the one used to make rain. Clouds are bombarded with vast quantities of silver iodide, which causes chemical changes that release heat and reduce the hurricane's wind velocity. Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, predicted last year that within five years a hurricane approaching the coast with 100-knot winds will have its winds reduced to 70 knots or less and the height of the water reduced by 50 per cent. The first suggestion that hurricanes could be controlled came in August 1969, when Hurricane Debbie abated after seeding. Besides rain-making and hurricane control, researchers are also working on methods to surpress cloud-to-ground lightning, reduce hail, and disperse fog and snow storms. Science magazine (May 7, 1971) predicts that the unsolved technological problems of weather tampering will be resolved long before the legal and political ones it poses. The "use of weather modification techniques on a large scale raises difficult questions about legal responsibilities, conflicting social desires, and appropriate governmental regulatory activities." Last year, for example, Florida tomato growers threatened to seek a court injunction against cloud-seeding until it was postponed. And the potential for international complications is so great it has so far deterred any wide-ranging weather experiments.

SLIPSHOD LOBBY REPORTS

Several years ago the Missouri Legislature added a requirement for spending reports by lobbyists to its weak conflict of interest code. We thought that a modest improvement. How modest is shown by the fact that the deadline for lobbyists to file their reports concerning the last legislative session was July 10, and by that time only about 41 per cent of the known lobbyists had bothered to file — mostly in terms of unrevealing lump-sum amounts spent. Perhaps the lobbyists are no more to blame for this irregularity than the state, which is supposed to enforce the lobbying law and its penalties. If the state does not do this, lobby registration can be expected to erode toward non - existence.

Hand That Rocks the Wallet

There's one area of the women's rights movement where the girls are clearly winning:

Women start "liberating" the pay checks of their husbands within a year or so after marriage, reports the Survey Research Laboratory of the University of Illinois.

The laboratory interviewed about 250 newlywed couples in Peoria and Decatur, asking them about various aspects of money handling. A year later, the same couples answered the same questions again.

"Comparison of the two sets of responses shows that the wives are taking over in every case," says Prof. Robert Ferber, director of the laboratory.

In the important area of decision-making, there was a 98 per cent increase in the proportion of wives deciding what to do with leftover money, and a 56 per cent increase in the proportion of wives deciding how much cash

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

You'll enjoy your life more after 40 if you make it a rule never to read a book more than 400 pages long—except the Bible. Any author who can't say what's on his mind in 400 pages is only mumbling to himself.

The two most discontented types of people in America are Army colonels and the vice presidents of large corporations. They are symbols of top-level failure. The colonel who never wins a general's star, the vice president who never gets his name lettered in gold on the Big Door—each feels in his heart like an also ran, who almost made it but didn't quite.

This would be a happier world if at least once a year everyone in it would sit down in the grass with his heart's desire and spend an hour together doing nothing but look for fourleaf clovers.

Achievement of some kind is possible to anybody, no matter what the handicap. That's why so many girls wear long fingernails. It is the only way they can think of to gain attention.

What is the most disappointing food you've ever had. Mine was pomegranate. It sounds so exotic and romantic, but the first and last time I tasted a pomegranate, it turned out to be a mouthful of disillusion. It was not nearly as exciting as a simple slice of watermelon.

We all need to blow off steam now and then. That's why it's a good idea to have a mischievous cat around a home. It gives the master of the house something to swear at.

There are few things more deflating than being the last man in a parade. I'd rather not march in one than be its tag ender.

One of the best ways to please a girl is to propose marriage to her over long-distance telephone. The best way to annoy her is to reverse the charges.

One of the big differences between today and yesteryear is the hour and a half longer today a woman motorist with a flat tire has to wait before a gallant male motorist will halt and help her fix it.

The simplest way to halt a small child's crying is to take out your upper plate of false teeth and hold them to your ear as if they were talking to you. Fascinated by this, the child will immediately cease crying and tug at his own teeth in an attempt to duplicate your feat. If you don't have an upper plate of false teeth, you can use lower plate. It works almost as well.

A girl who marries a man with a waxed mustache has only herself to blame. No man who takes the time to keep his mustache waxed has time enough left for true love.

TOTAL SAFETY PENALIZES PROGRESS

Twenty – five years ago, there was little public discussion of the side effects of "miracle" drugs. The current political mania for absolute safety had yet to make its appearance. With respect to the more sophisticated healing drugs, there was no issue because the drugs did not exist twenty-five years ago; and for lack of them, countless people merely sickened and died. Of course, total safety is a will-of-the-wisp unattainable short of the grave.

The real issue has been well stated in an advertisement of the pharmaceutical industry. It says, "If a drug could restore your health would you accept the risk of side effects?" There is little doubt that most people would and do, when the drugs are available for their physicians to prescribe. A director of clinical medicine with a major pharmaceutical company presents his views in the drug industry advertisement. He observes, "... that every potent drug can cause side effects. If it didn't have any at all, it couldn't possibly do any good. The question is one of benefits versus potential risks. .. With the advent of more potent and useful products, undesirable side effects sometimes become a problem. This will be true in the future, too. . . a balance must be drawn between the good work done by a drug and its uunwanting effects. Physicians often can affect this balance by adjusting the dosage, or by selecting a different form of an existing drug product potent enough to do the job. But that doesn't stop us from looking for improvements."

The point is, both physicians and the drug industry should be given the greatest possible leeway in the use and development of the kind of drugs that one of these days you, or a member of your family, may desperately need. Those who slavishly pursue the cult of total safety ignore the value of the calculated risk -- which is inherent in the process of living.

Peat Moss Restores Sanity

THERE WAS A twinkle in the Old Promoter's eye (the good one) when he dropped in today. "My mind is at ease for the first time in years," he said.

"You know, one of the high crimes of American advertising writers is the dangling comparative," he went on. "They write that their produce is cheaper, smoother, firmer, softer and they say it offers more enjoyment, more pleasure, more security, but they never say what is at the other end of the comparison.

"After a few hours of reading the ads, I find myself mumbling to myself, "Gibbicks are cheaper than what? Zubbubs are chewier than what; Pippips give me more pleasure than what? It has become an obsession with me. You know how sometimes a jingle or a tune gets lodged in your mind and keeps running around in circles until it drives all sense out? That's the way the dangling comparatives affect me.

"Well, I've got a cure. It's peat moss. Whenever I read one of those comparisons, I mentally add 'peat moss.' It makes sense, at least enough to get the dangles out of my mind. Try it. Grunchies are richer than peat moss! Clabber soap offers more enjoyment than peat moss! It is a simple way to break up congestion of the brain."

The Old Promoter may have something there.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The government is moving rapidly toward making it possible to survive the impact of an auto week, but it's barely moving at all to make it easier to get out of your car afterwards.

The result is that 3,500 persons are killed in wrecked-auto fires each year and another 1,000 drown in submerged vehicles, according to data cited by a University of Oklahoma research team under contract with the Department of Transportation.

The researchers' obscure report, entitled "Escape Worthiness of Vehicles and Occupant Survival," concludes, moreover, "Enough detail is available to establish that entrapment without fire or submergence is frequent enough to be a serious problem."

Transportation Department officials say the Oklahoma group is continuing its work, and they point out that standards for flammability of auto upholstery have already been set.

But we have searched in vain through the confidential, $40.5 million National Highway Safety Bureau 1973 research budget for any sign that the bureau is doing the kind of large-scale research that will be needed to establish full standards for escape-worthiness.

What's more, the flammability standard set by the Department is what the Oklahoma research team already found to be the norm in the cars they tested.

And there is apparently no use looking to the auto industry itself to take the lead in making vehicles more fire-resistant. For the companies wanted the government to set a far weaker fabrics standard than the burn rate of four inches per minute which was finally established.

As the Oklahoma study put it: "The 15-inch-per- minute horizontal burning rate advocated by the automobile manufacturers for vehicle interior materials is equivalent to the burning rate of ordinary paper towels."

--SLIM SURVIVAL CHANCE--

The report indicated strongly that the chances of survival in a car that plunges into water are slim. "The air bubble entrapped in (the test) vehicle could be breathed less than one minute by the front-seat passengers and only slightly greater than a minute by experienced divers in the rear seat," it said.

The report found that car doors sometimes jammed under water for reasons that apparently have nothing to do with the so-called "overpressure" of the water that bears down on the roof.

This overpressure often pushes the tops of cars "down significantly," making it still harder to either get out or breathe.

Equally treacherous after an accident are buses, especially school buses with push-out windows, the researchers discovered.

"Push-out windows pose significant problems as an escape route from a bus," the report says. "They are often inadequate to prevent passenger ejection and/or too difficult to open for escape."

Intercity buses, too, were found to have escape problems: "The adequacy of window exits for escape when passengers are injuried is doubtful because of the problems in entering the exits as well as the height of the exit above the ground."

Note: The sad state of the escapability art is all the more surprising in view of the uproar two years ago over the death of Mary Jo Kopechne who was trapped and drowned when Sen. Edward Kennedy's car went off the bridge at Chappaquiddick Island.

--POLLUTION PUBLICIST--

The Boating Industry Association has sent letters to newspapers calling us to task for telling how outboard motors dump 100 million gallons of oil and gas into our streams, rivers and coastal waters each year.

The boat group's executive director, Matt Kaufman, said we got our figures from an anti-pollution company with an ax to grind. Kaufman is a sloppy publicist for a man who represents 500 boating firms. If he had called us, we would have told him the figures came from a Federal Water Quality Administration report, not a private company.

The federal report, dated September, 1970, and called "Contribution of Marine Outboard Engines to Water Pollution" gives an estimate of "100 million to 200 million gallons a year" for the gunk dumped in our waters by the engines. And this report's author, federal sanitary engineer Denis Lussier, told us "in my opinion this is pretty conservative."

Kaufman cites a study on the harmlessness of oil and gas dumpage by outboards, but fails to say the study was sponsored by Mercury, a big manufacturer of outboard motors. To the credit of the companies, they are at last marketing an anti-polluting motor this year. But with a spokesman like Kaufman, we, at least, will have a hard time believing what they have to say about it.

Sauce for Goose Is Not. . . .

Kent State University trustees have approved changes in the school's code of student conduct, including a provision for interim suspension of students in certain cases.

"The interim suspensions will be used with restraint, such as in cases of gross violence or of continuing danger to university order," President Robert I. White told the trustees. "If used, an effort will be made to hold a practically simultaneous hearing."

Three student representatives attending the meeting objected to the changes.

"Students will view this as another phase of a repressive society," said one, warning that it could lead to "increased polarization" that could possibly result in violence.

"Before any student is punished there should be a hearing to determine whether he is guilty," said another.

By the same token, no police officer should ever be given an interim suspension pending investigation of charges of brutality or excessive use of force or other unbecoming conduct during, say, a campus disturbance.

But you'll never hear any student extending his logic that far.

THE BROWN SHIRTS ARE BACK

At a recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in Washington, the self-avowed revolutionary, Rennie Davis, told members that he and his comrades would soon return to the Capitol city to instigate destruction again. Davis claimed that "...if the Government doesn't stop the war, we will stop the Government."

Later, at a news conference, Davis said that the new campaign will be "militant and broad-based, aimed at creating an intolerable situation for the American Government as long as it continues its war policies. If Richard Nixon thinks this week was hot, wait until next time. This was only a warmup."

In support of the well-done job of the Washington police in that battle with Davis forces, Attorney General John N. Mitchell says he hopes the same strong resistance by lawmen will be continued during the promised demonstrations.

Mitchell also took issue with Senator Lee Metcalf, who compared the police to the Nazis. Mitchell said: "I would like to recall another group of civilians who roamed the streets of Germany in the 1920's, bullying people, shouting down those who disagreed with them, and denying other citizens their civil rights. They were called Hitler's Brown Shirts." As Mitchell pointed out, if those first Germ.n Brown Shirts had been call d to account for their theft of the rights of others and made to pay for it, the world might have been spared a whole era of violence and misery.

The Brown Shirts of Republic USA should be stopped now, by whatever deterrent required. Or we may have to "face the music" as Germany did. HLH

Angry Longshoremen Set To Paralyze Vital Harbors From Maine To Texas

By Victor Riesel

Miami: -- Visions of shipments of oil for the lamps of China is no salve for the militant conventioning Longshoremen's leaders here. Many of them are angry men -- for many of their followers are jobless. And there's strike fever in the tepid air. If the signals are what they seem to be, harbors from Sears Port, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas, will be shut tight, headlines will be screaming just as they are now over rail and communication crises.

It's always startling to insiders to observe the lack of national understanding of the significance of the open-shirted, rough and always ready dockwallopers, here for their 42nd national convention. They are one of the few actual industrial power blocs in the land. If they strike when their contract is up on Sept. 30, they can cork up the land by bottling up Canadian, Great Lakes, Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Then, mighty little cargo moves in or out of the nation, docks are clogged, rail freight backs up, truck, rail and water freight is embargoed -- and a rail strike is much like a short circuit on a toy train set by comparison. Yet though the signals are obvious here, and all the maritime government leaders are here -- including journalism's gift of women's lib and federal officialdom, former reporter Helen D. Bentley, now chairlady of the U.S. Maritime Commission -- little is being done by Congress to avert a stoppage before the nation gets another set of strike-provoked screaming-meemies.

Congress could do this by pouring out a few million dollars in ship subsidies to make more work -- instead of standing by and letting a stoppage flare which will cost billions of dollars. But the men on the Hill never move until they are called into midnight session to sit as a national labor court.

From here on the scenario will run somewhat like this: The opening scene will be the New York Harbor. There the piers are rotting and dying. Some 4,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) (AFL-CIO) are jobless. Many of the movie-type hook-carrying dockwallopers have been replaced by huge steel containers which carry cargo in one huge steel "package."

However, under the swiftly expiring three-year contract these men are guaranteed an annual wage of $9,568. To get this money they must show for work at the central registers. Not all of them report regularly. Not all of them are constantly without work. So don't do any arithmetic. The cost, however, is enormous for the New York Shipping Assn. which pays the bill for the idle.

In the first year, the guaranteed pay ran to $2.7 million. Then it jumped to $14 million. Finally this year it will hit $30 million. This makes it a total of some $47 million for idle men.

Executive Vice President Jonnny Bowers, as quiet as he is tough when he bargains for his men, says: "We have got 4,000 longshoremen who have lost their jobs. We're lucky we negotiated the guaranteed annual wage. The men, however, just check in and go home. But they are lost people. It's good to know a man has a check. But it is not good for him to be without work."

Bowers, working closely with his chief, ILA President Teddy Gleason, wants new container pier facilities built on Manhattan's West Side, the historic docks once known the world over as the great passenger and cargo center. It would not take much money to whip them into shape. And it would not take more than $20 million to subsidize the reactivating of luxury liners such as the United States, the Independence and the Constitution, eight of which are now laid up.

There isn't a single American flag passenger ship moving out of Atlantic and Gulf ports. They can't operate or even break even without a subsidy. Yet the U.S. State Dept. has been pressuring Gleason and Bowers to handle Soviet cruise ships now looking for blue-ribbon traffic. Gleason has said he would end the longshoremen's 21-year ban on handling Russian vessels if the U.S. government would put a few "pennies" into the American passenger ships.

If there is no work in Manhattan there will be a strike there -- and if New York goes down, "if you can't settle a contract in New York, you can't settle a contract anywhere until we settle first. New York is the bargaining spot. After New York is settled then we go to the rest of the ports," says Bowers.

And now the ILA is asking for a guaranteed weekly pay which will be more costly and the New York Shipping Assn. says this contract negotiation is "Operation Survival" for all sides and it can't continue to pay $50 million "and millions more for work not here and work not done."

"The employers might as well know now that I will never give up the guaranteed annual wage," says Bowers. "It is a No. 1 strike issue. They might as well know also that we want it improved...

"Our cards are on the table and it is no secret that our hole card is the strength and determination of our membership to do what they have to in order to get a fair and decent contract."

So the public now knows and shouldn't be surprised when the docks are paralyzed as they are now on the West Coast. There's never any mystery to the intricacies of a massive and crippling strike. The cards always are on the table.

This time, however, not only the nation's entire transport, on sea, land and even in the air is involved, but foreign policy and trade with the Soviets and with Red China too. Now is the time for Congress to pay the pennies for our own waterfront people instead of opening the docks to what is essentially unfair, slave-wage Communist competition!

Buckley Says His Magazine Faked Secret Paper Report

NEW YORK (AP) — William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the National Review, says his magazine perpetrated a hoax with fictional Vietnam papers to show that such forgeries "would be widely accepted as genuine provided their content was inherently plausible."

Buckley revealed the elaborate spoof Wednesday after a large segment of the American news media had carried stories on what the magazine called "highly classified government documents relating to the Vietnam war."

"We admit we proceeded in something of an ethical vacuum," Buckley told newsmen with a broad grin, but he suggested that somewhere in the government archives were real documents similar to the forgeries printed in the magazine.

"The point is that the papers, or something like them, must have been written," he said. "Therefore, one concludes that the difficulty was not that the Pentagon and the CIA gave LBJ bad advice, but that LBJ didn't take good advice."

Another aim of the hoax, he said, was to demonstrate "that the Pentagon and the CIA are not composed of incompetents— the unwarranted conclusion to which many were led by the fragmentary revelations of the New York Times and The Washington Post."

Appearing under the title, "The Secret Papers They Didn't Publish," the National Review "documents" included dispatches attributed to former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the CIA and others. Most were dated in the early 1960s.

Suspicions of a hoax grew when several of the persons listed as authors said they couldn't recall writing the "documents." Social historian Daniel Boorstin flatly denied writing a memo the magazine credited to him.

Buckley, who had been unavailable for comment when the magazine was released to the press, said at the Wednesday news conference that the "documents" were composed by editors of the magazine "ex nihilo"--out of nothing.

The New York Times, however, said today that at least some of the "documents" were composed ex New York Times and from the published statements of the persons credited with authorship by the magazine.

The Times said the first two memorandums quoted in the National Review were in fact excerpted from actual memorandums printed by the Times in its series in June and July about the secret Pentagon study of American involvement in the war.

Buckley, who has been championing the right wing and sticking pins in liberals since his days at Yale University, has been known to enjoy a puton in the past.

He ran for mayor of New York City in 1965 "half in fun," telling newsmen that if elected his first act would be to "demand a recount." That wasn't necessary as he lost to John V. Lindsay.

One of 10 children of a millionaire Connecticut oilman, Buckley evinced an early interest in politics when at the age of 6 he wrote a letter to King George V suggesting England pay its war debt.

He first came to national attention in 1951 when, fresh out of school, he wrote "God and Man at Yale," a scathing indictment of his alma mater which he claimed was drifting to leftism.

He founded the weekly National Review in 1954 to "keep the left from winning by default" to such liberal rival publications as The Nation, the New Leader and the New Republic.

Talking of the hoax Wednesday, he said the idea "arose at an editorial meeting two weeks ago yesterday. We were discussing the Pentagon papers as released and the fact they were ideologically tendentious.

"I, in fact, initiated the idea. I said, 'Hey, team, what do you think about this—?' We were remarking on the point Maxwell Taylor made that the papers were fragmentary.

"We reasoned that others at that time saw what was actually happening and gave appropriate advice to the government. We then created them. That step was easy for National Review editors."

"Those who will want to question the methods we used in order to make our demonstration may proceed to do so," he said. "I take the opportunity to point out that there were no personal victims of the National Review papers but, we like to believe, many beneficiaries."

Formula Liberalized to Allow Bigger Cotton Payments in '72

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department has liberalized a formula under which cotton farmers will be able to collect larger government payments in 1972 to help offset losses this year from drought and other natural disasters.

The formula change was included in a package of drought-relief actions announced Wednesday by Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin.

Involved is a cotton farmer's average production used as a basis for computing his price support payments of 15 cents a pound. That payment is for cotton grown on "national allotment" acres which is used domestically.

Although the regulation change was directed mainly toward southwestern cotton areas currently plagued by drought, an agricultural stabilization and conservation service spokesman said the upgraded formula will apply universally throughout the Cotton Belt.

A farmer whose crop was cut this year by too much rain, for example, also would be eligible for the increased benefits.

Hardin's announcement also extended haying and grazing privileges on land taken from production and emergency livestock feed sales from government-owned stocks through next Dec. 31.

Those programs, for designated counties in drought areas, were due to expire on Aug. 31.

Procedures for getting the government-owned grain also were modified, including authorization to let farmers use their own vehicles to help haul grain into drought areas, and a speed-up in clearing grain purchase applications through government offices.

Hardin also called attention to federal aid available for sharing with farmers the costs of emergency tillage to prevent wind erosion on crop land and pastures.

'Fiddler on Roof' Sets Mark

NEW YORK (AP)— A cheering audience gave "Fiddler on the Roof" a five-minute standing ovation as the cast completed the 2,845th performance, making it the longest-running musical in Broadway history.

Outside two huge spotlights played on the Broadway Theater. Inside, balloons floated down from the ceiling as Mayor John V. Lindsay, the creators of the musical and the first star of the show went on stage Wednesday night for a post-performance celebration with the present cast.

"It's a wonderful thing about Sholom Aleichem," Zero Mostel, the original star of the show, said of the man who wrote the stories that inspired "Fiddler."

"He's become more acceptable than Shakespeare. He runs longer," Mostel said. "Sholom Aleichem means 'peace be with you', and that's what it's all about today."

The musical tale of Tevye, a Yiddish dairyman in Russia at the turn of the century, broke the 2,844-performance mark set when "Hello, Dolly!" closed last Dec. 27. "Fiddler" is still going strong--mail orders are being accepted through next Jan. 2.

A total of 147 investors spent $375,000 to bring the show to Broadway on Sept. 22, 1964. They and producer Harold Prince have reaped $6,952,500 in profits--a return of 927 per cent on the investment.

Prince had invited the cast, the audience, and the actors, authors, producers and directors of all shows now running on Broadway to the performance party.

The audience of 1,900 persons included the grandchildren of Sholom Aleichem.

Encouraging Report Issued on Corn Blight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plant pathologists concerned with the destructive southern corn leaf blight say damage to this year's crop has been light so far and spread of the disease has been slower than expected in most of the Corn Belt.

A survey of agriculture officials in some midwestern states showed all in agreement that mostly dry weather the remainder of the growing season could ensure a fairly good crop. Blight thrives best under hot, humid conditions.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin said Wednesday the blight has caused no significant economic damage yet this year. In South Sioux City, Neb., to meet with governors of 15 midwestern states, Hardin added that blight has been noted this year in all major corn-producing states.

Last year the disease was a major contributor to a 15 per cent loss in the corn crop.

State agriculture officials surveyed by The Associated Press Wednesday reported spread of disease in their states as ranging from light to moderate and "not serious." Several states reported the blight is "no problem."

In Illinois, plant pathologists at the University of Illinois said that at present infection levels, the amount of damage likely to occur will be less than the actual damage in 1970.

In Nebraska, the disease has been found in 43 of the state's 93 counties, including the major corn producing areas.

Dr. David Wyson, plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska, said, "We have had intermittent weather periods which are favorable to spread of the disease followed by others not favorable. If the weather holds dry, we should be in fairly good shape."

Kansas officials reported the blight was confirmed in 30 eastern counties where damage was reported as light. They said the disease is not expected to become a serious problem. Officials added no reports had been received from southern counties of the state, where the disease was prevalent last year.

In Iowa, the State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said there has been some increase in the spread of the disease, but that for the most part the infection still is light in the state.

Minnesota reported the disease was confirmed in 17 counties. A University of Minnesota extension service spokesman said, however, that it is "a very, very light infestation."

Revised Food Stamp Plan to Be Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department planned to announce today revised proposals for putting more food stamps into the hands of the poorest families and shutting out hippies and job-shy adults.

The revised plan is the Nixon administration's answer to Capitol Hill critics who charged regulations announced last April were too restrictive and that some low-income families would wind up paying more for food stamps.

Food stamps, governmentbacked coupons sold to qualified low-income people, are chief weapons in the government's pledge to wipe out hunger in the United States.

About 11 million persons get stamps, double the number a year ago. The coupons are sold at rates based on household monthly income and bonuses given to boost family buying power at grocery stores.

Under new uniform schedules proposed in April, for example, a family of four with an income of $50 to $60 a month would spend $10 on stamps worth $108 a supermarkets.

Congress, in a new $2-billiona-year food-stamp law passed late in 1970, liberalized the program generally but also slapped new restrictions on some users. Able-bodied adults, for example, would be required to register for and accept available jobs as part of the food stamp qualification.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — Tickets for the governor's birthday party Saturday sold out Wednesday. It marked the earliest sellout of tickets in the six-year history of the fund raising event for Democrats.

State Democratic chairman Delton Houtchens of Clinton said receipts for the party are in excess of $50,000 to date.

Houtchens explained the 1,392 seating at the Ramada Inn hwere has always been sold, but the 1971 celebration is "the earliest sellout ever." He said sales would continue to 10 per cent above capacity as usual, counting on that number of absentees, but he expected sales to end Wednesday.

The Hearnes' birthday party honors the governor and his wife whose birthdays are on July 24—date of this year's party. It has been the big fund raising event of the year for the Democratic Party since Hearnes became governor.

Hearnes Urges Bond Hearings

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said Wednesday night he will ask the state highway commission to hold open hearings on the possibility of including rapid transit in a proposed $464 million road bond issue.

Previously Hearnes said he is against tying rapid transit to the road issue because he didn't think they would pass as a package. The commission is preparing to conduct an initiative petition drive to bring the road proposal before the voters.

Hearnes, said he would be willing to include rapid transit if it can be shown the voters want it. He said he was still not sure it has enough support in St. Louis or Kansas City.

The governor is slated to address the highway commission at its next meeting. The commission chairman, Jack Stapleton, Sr., said: "If the governor thinks we should have public hearings I think the commission would go along."

Ann Landers

Mother Enjoys Being A Patsy to Loafer Son

Dear Ann Landers: I saw myself in your column the other day -- the homely child whose mother was so ashamed she covered the little girl's face with a heavy veiling when she took her out in the baby carriage.

I hope your message got through to that mother because nobody got through to mine. I grew up believing I was the ugliest person in the world. I didn't make friends because I felt I was too homely to be seen with. My posture was bad because I kept my shoulders hunched so no one would have to look at my face.

One day a kind teacher asked me to stay after school. I swear I thought she was going to tell me I was too ugly to be in her class, and I was being transferred. Instead she told me I had very pretty hair and nice eyes and I shouldn't worry about my nose and chin -- that my face would develop nicely in time and I might even be considered a beauty. She showed me magazine pictures of models who had weak chins and prominent noses and explained that irregular features could be "interesting." That wonderful teacher changed my life. After our visit I stood a little straighter and started to believe that one day I might be considered attractive. I began to open up to others and accept friendship -- something I couldn't do before. Today I am happily married and we have two beautiful children. Please print this letter for other Ugly Ducklings and their mothers. It might help someone -- somewhere. --- Made It Anyway

Dear M.I.: Here's your letter -- and a big bouquet of orchids to that wonderful teacher. I hopes she sees it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our brother is 25 years of age, a bona fide loafer and a well-dressed bum. He has been out of work for two years and is not looking very hard. He lives with Mom who has bought him a car, pays for his insurance, gives him spending money, irons his shirts (the laundries aren't careful enough) and cracks his soft-boiled eggs in the morning. (If she gets a few shells in them he yells at her.)

Last week he married a 19-year-old girl. She has no job either. Mom owns this building and he wants one of her choice apartments -- "on credit." We feel he has taken advantage of Mom to the point that it is sickening. How can we get her to see the light? --- Fed Fed Fed

Dear Triple Fed: Your mother doesn't want to see the light. She enjoys being a patsy for your brother. In fact, she has set herself up for it. The sad thing is that her indulgence has made him what he is today -- and he will pay the price.

Dear Ann Landers: Our nine-year-old son and his six-year-old cousin play nicely together. Last Sunday I went to the bedroom to call them for supper and I found them half undressed, 'playing doctor." I was so upset I nearly fainted.

Our son has always been a good child and I had no idea he was interested in sex. I don't know how far they went but I am worried. My husband and I are respectable people and we don't know where the boy got off the track. Is this child disturbed? Should we seek help for him? --- Lousiville Dear Louis: All normal children are inquisitive. It is natural for them to explore. This doesn't mean they are disturbed ---- or bad.

Youngsters should not be left unsupervised, for long periods of time under any circumstances. Moreover the children should be taught that their bodies are "private" and clothes must be kept on. If the clothes come off occasionally, Mom should not become unglued and make them feel they've done a terrible thing.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Investment Analyst Says the Long Skirt Has Won

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Call it midi or longuette, the triumph of the longer skirt by any name is inevitable.

And with the ultimate victory of the calf-length hem, American women for perhaps the first time will enjoy a panorama of flexible fashion in which nearly anything goes and apparel decisions are dominated by mood.

So says Joanne Howard, investment analyst for ISI Corp., San Francisco, who makes stock recommendations in the apparel field to the ISI Group of Mutual Funds.

Mrs. Howard acknowledges that longer skirts "didn't make it last year — but I don't think anything in the way of big change would have made it last year.

"The consumer was just too uncertain about a lot of things, including fashion. If 'hot pants' or mini skirts had been introduced last fall, I don't think they would have made it, either. The timing wasn't right."

In a period of uncertainty, economic or otherwise, the consumer — especially the female — turns to compromise, Mrs. Howard says.

"The pants suit was an ideal compromise for her," she notes. "With it, she didn't have to worry about skirt length — and she knew she would be able to wear the pants after the skirt controversy is resolved.

"Things have changed now, though. Pants suits are not being purchased as dressy apparel—they are returning to the category of sports wear, and this will increase as women turn to the longer skirt."

Mrs. Howard feels too much was expected of the consumer in the conversion to the midi; the longer skirt required time for acceptance.

"It was such a drastic, dramatic change — from mini to midi," she notes. "Fashion experts accepted it swiftly, of course, because they like rapid change. But the consumer could not accept it immediately—none of her friends was wearing it. For a time, there was hardly anyone to emulate."

The acceptance of the miniskirt was a gradual accomplishment too, Mrs. Howard recalls, which "succeeded the same way I believe the long skirt will.

"It started in England and crossed the Atlantic. The fashion-conscious in New York discovered it, then those in California went for it. Finally, the Midwest got the message. And this is what is happening with the longuette or midi.

Getting Started Off On Right Foot Hard

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Getting off on the right foot is the goal of most young marrieds, but for Charles and Maria Dillow, that's going to have to wait until they get their right legs out of casts.

Victims of leg fractures July 11 when their motorcycle collided with a car at an intersection as they were en route to the home of Mrs. Dillow's grandmother for Sunday dinner, the Dillows face convalesence of at least six months before he can return to his job as a truck driver and she as a waitress.

"It may be a year before I can go back to work," Dillow said. Dillow, 23, a veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam, and Maria, 18, were married almost two years ago while Dillow was on leave between tours in Vietnam. Upon his discharge,they settled into an apartment, and as Maria put it: "Things were just starting to go well when this happened."

"My medical insurance covers some of our expenses," Dillow said. "But with the months of hospitalization and therapy plus our other bills, I just don't know what we're going to do."

Mrs. Dillow's grandmother, Mrs. Leota Staples, has moved the young couples's belonging to her home and she decided along with Mrs. Dillow's mother, Mrs. Mary Buck of Herman, Neb., to set up a fund for the couple.

Love Is Artist to Be Married Saturday

It will be a winter wedding in July when Miss Marilyn Judith Grove and Roberto Alfredo Vincenzo Casali are married on Saturday in New Zealand.

Miss Grove is Kim Grove, the artist and creator of the popular Love Is... panel from The Daily Standard. Love Is... was born as a newspaper feature when the Los Angeles based Miss Grove started concluding her daily love letters to her finance in San Francisco with a little drawing and a romantic caption which began with the words Love Is...

A newspaperman friend saw the drawings, suggested they be syndicated, and now the cartoon panel is carried in more than 250 newspapers.

Miss Grove, a native of Auckland, and Casali will be married on July 24 at Saint Andrew's Church, Epsom, Auckland, New Zealand, the same church in which her parents were married in 1936.

Gourmet Cooking Is Now The Thing

MINNEAPOLIS — Not too long ago the average American's idea of a good meal was steak, chops or fried chicken. Now it's apt to be Beef Fondue or Coq au Vin.

The idea of flavor used to be salt, pepper and a bottle of catsup. Now it's likely to be red wine, rosemary, anise or shallots.

Gourmet cooking is the art of making good food taste better. One expert defines gourmet foods as "products with extra quality." Another says it's making the most of what you have. Some think that any gourmet meal is one that does more than just satisfy hunger pangs.

Any foreign or ethnic dish, not ordinarily in one's diet, can be gourmet. Health and organically-grown foods are also beginning to come into the gourmet picture.

Earle R. MacAusland, publisher of Gourmet, sees the trend in gourmet cooking as a sign that Americans are at last beginning to appreciate good food.

The changing lifestyles of young homemakers, increased leisure and home entertainment have contributed to the growing interest in good food. Postwar affluence sent millions of Americans abroad to study and travel; they came back eager to duplicate their new food experiences. Servicemen and their families, on overseas duty, returned with a love for foreign foods and the knowhow to prepare them.

There has been an increasing urge for status, and gourmet cooking gives the homemaker something "new and different" to serve for family or guests. Seeking new dishes can be a social activity.

Americans have found, in gourmet cooking, a way to be creative, giving them the satisfaction of personal accomplishment.

Twenty years ago, gourmet or specialty foods could be found only in a handful of fancys food stores or delicatessens in large cities, mainly New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Today there is hardly a community without some kind of specialty food outlet.

Practically all supermarkets have now at least a small gourmet corner, reports the Family Economics Bureau. Larger stores may also have sections of premium quality fruits, vegetables and meats. Department stores, gift shops, boutiques and scores of fancy food shops also offer a tempting array of imported and domestic foods.

It is estimated that sale of gourmet foodstuffs ran well over $1 billion last year. And it's expanding at a rate of about 10% each year.

While a real gourmet says a cookbook is merely the foundation that allows one to use imagination, sales of cookbooks are booming. In 1960, U.S. publishers brought out only 40 new cookbooks. Last year saw over 200 new volumes. The circulation of Gourmet magazine has almost doubled since 1967.

Among the 1200 cookbooks available today, there can be found books on virtually every foreign cuisine. And cookbooks devoted exclusively to pancakes, rice, beef, casseroles, chicken or souffles. There are books on gourmet cooking for one or more, for a crowd, or the American kitchen. One can be a gourmet at the grill, on a low-fat or cardiac diet, with health foods or wine.

TV cooking show and local cooking schools have greatly aided the appreciation of good food and drink. For those to whom foreign foods once meant pizza and chop suey, the Galloping Gourmet and Julia Child have become household names.

But gourmet cooking is not only a pastime for women. Cooking schools are extremely popular with men, according to Northwestern National Life. And one gourmet shop in Philadelphia says over half its clientele is men.

One strictly limited to the wealthy, gourmet cooking has now spread to every income group. Specialty or quality foods do bring a premium price, so it is possible to spend a lot of money on gourmet cooking. But one can also spend very little, use imagination and still turn out a gourmet meal fit for a king.

Gourmet cookware, once used only by French chefs, can now be found in many homes. Sales of gourmet cooking utensils are up as much as 25% in some stores this year, despite lagging sales in other departments.

A major Chicago store says French and Scandinavian imports and such items as fondue pots and Chinese woks are "selling like hotcakes." Paella pans, fish poachers and clay bakers, at prices from $10 to $20, are selling well.

Omelet pans, souffle dishes, French whisks, butter molds, chopping blocks and scales are some of the other "essentials" of gourmet cookery. Stores often bring in famous chefs such as James Beard or Rudolph Standish to teach customers how too use the cookware.

A true connoisseur says good food must be accompanied by a good wine.

Funds Needed By Junior Stars

Parents of the Junior Babe Ruth All Stars, winners of the district tournament at V.F.W. Stadium last week, met Thursday morning with League President Arthur Bruce and District Director Bob Ralph to discuss fund raising plans for sending the All Stars to next week's state tournament at Lebanon.

The All Stars picked up $300 for winning the District tournament and will need an additional $900 - $1,000 for the four -day event. This includes lodging and meals for the 15 players, two coaches, and the manager.

Senior Babe Ruth All Stars, participating in the state tournament at Boonville raised almost $1,700 last week through contributions from businesses and a road block for donations.

It was pointed out by Ralph, that businessmen have been hit hard this and recent years for donations to finance baseball trips. He said he felt that the boys and their parents should raise the money by other means.

Thes proceeds from last week's district tournament will be turned over to the Junior BabeRuth League for its use in the state tournament.

It was brought out that the Sikeston baseball program, including the Little Leagues and Babe Ruth Leagues was getting too large and too expensive to be operated by commissioners for each league. Parents voiced their hopes that the city would take over the management of part of the program when the proposed baseball complex is completed.

Ralph mentioned the possibility of the city passing a one - fourth cent recreation tax and hiring a full time director to manage a summer, fall, and winter program as Poplar Bluff now has.

It was decided that donations for the Junior Babe Ruth trip to the state tournament, a trip earned by the All Stars with its victory in the District event, would be received and that the boys and their parents should work to obtain additional funds for the trip.

Donations can be mailed to League President Bruce, in care of the Sikeston Police Department, the Sikeston Standard sports department, or to the two radio stations.

The Junior Babe Ruth All Stars play their first game in the state tournament Wednesday.

Senior Babe Ruth Stars Play Tonight

BOONVILLE -- Sikeston's Senior Babe Ruth All - Stars tangle with Jefferson City in a winners bracket baseball game of the state tournament at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

The Bob Jones managed diamond crew opened tournament play Monday with a 16-1 romp of Golden Valley. Jefferson City edged Kirksville, 6-4, for its opening round victory.

Only two other teams remain in the winners bracket of the 10-team event. Tri-County of Boonville goes against the tourney favorite, Clay - Platt in tonight's 6:30 p.m. opener. Clay - Platte shut out Ozark 2-0 and Tri - County dropped Lebanon 5-1.

Kirksville dropped out of the week long event when it took its second loss of the tournament, bowing to Golden Valley, 5-3.

McCovey Socks Grand-Slam HR

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Willie McCovey speaks, everyone listens ... and when he hits, everyone watches.

McCovey, the biggest and strongest brute in San Francisco's power-packed lineup, let his bat do the talking as usual and hit a grand slam that clobbered Pittsburgh 8-4 Wednesday night.

His two-out wallop off Pittsburgh's ace reliever, Dave Giusti, capped a six-run ninth inning that led the Giants back from a 4-2 deficit.

The comeback victory was a lift for San Francisco, trying to beat off Los Angeles' pennant bid in the National League West. It gave the Giants an eight-game lead after the Dodgers lost to Cincinnati 6-2.

In the other games, the Montreal Expos stopped the Houston Astros 5-3; the Chicago Cubs whacked the New York Mets 11-7; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 and the Atlanta Braves took a doubleheader from the San Diego Padres 8-7 in 11 innings and 1-0.

Dick Dietz opened the Giants' rally with a double and only advanced one base on a single to right when Roberto Clemente fired a strike to home plate.

"If Dietz scores, it turns the whole game around then the score would be 4-3 and we'd have to sacrifice the potential tying run on first and second," explained San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox.

But with men on first and third, Alan Gallagher had orders to hit away. He singled home the first run, then the Giants loaded the bases with a walk before Giusti got the next two men.

With two out, Willie Mays walked to force in the tying run and set the table for McCovey.

A three-base error by Mays almost made the Giants' great center fielder the goat.

Clemente's single skipped past Mays in the seventh and the Pittsburgh right-fielder came all the way around to tie the game 2-2. Manny Sanguillen then homered to put the Pirates ahead and they scored another run in the eighth to take a short-lived 4-2 lead.

Gary Nolan scattered seven hits and batted in two runs in a five-run third inning to lead Cincinnati over slumping Los Angeles, which lost its sixth in seven games.

CENTURIES are spanned in this view of two prominent buildings in the Soviet city of Gorki. In the foreground are the gilded onion towers of a 17th-century church, typical of historical Gorki. Behind it a new high-rise apartment, typical of the 750-year-old city's rapidly changing 20th-century face.

Starr Complains of Arm Pain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What do you do with a 37year-old quarterback, sidelined the end of last season with a sore throwing arm, who complains of pain in that arm during a passing drill Tuesday?

If the quarterback's name is Bart Starr you send him to a doctor. Quickly.

That's what Green Bay Coach Dan Devine did with Starr, quarterback of the Packers through the glory years of the Vince Lombardi era but sidelined for much of the past three seasons with an assortment of injuries.

Starr left the Green Bay camp Wednesday morning and visited the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. He was back at camp for the team's afternoon practice, but limited his activity to calling plays.

"It was a precautionary move," explained Devine, in his first year as coach of the Packers after a highly successful record in the college ranks. "It was time for another opinion."

Starr has been undergoing an extensive program of training and rehabilitation in an effort to relieve the soreness in his throwing arm. If his arm does not come around, the Packers will be without a dependable quarterback.

There are three other signalcallers in the Green Bay camp. Zeke Bratkowski, now 39 and attempting a comeback after two years as an assistant coach, is the only one with pro experience. The others are Scott Hunter, a number six draftee from Alabama, and Frank Patrick, a converted tight end.

The Packers traded Don Horn, who had been groomed as Starr's heir apparent, to the Broncos during the off-season.

Earlier this week they cut Rick Norton, who received a large bonus from Miami to sign as a top draft choice in 1968.

Dallas linebacker Chuck Howley ended a five-day "retirement" by signing a oneyear contract with the Cowboys and reporting to camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Meanwhile, second-year running back Duane Thomas said he and the Cowboys are $50,000 apart in contract talks and denounced the management as "inhuman people" who are "trying to crook me." Thomas earned $20,000 last year and is asking for $80,000 this time around.

One member of the holdout revolution, running back Larry Brown of Washington, became a former member by signing a multi-year pact with the Redskins. Brown, who paced the National Football League in rushing last year, had reportedly been asking $125,000. Terms of his contract were not revealed.

Two other rebel running backs, Dick Post and Mike Garrett of San Diego, reported to the Chargers' training camp and took part in Wednesday afternoon's workout.

Card Rookie Tames Phils

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reggie Cleveland, a rookie, has twice been deprived of shutouts this season by throwing home run pitches in his role as a St. Louis Cardinal right-hander.

But the strong-armed Canadian has survived in both instances to triumph simply by not walking anyone.

"I guess that's the thing that's on my mind more than anything else," the 23-year-old Cleveland said Wednesday night after stopping the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 on five hits.

Oscar Gamble touched the 6foot-1, 195-pound Cleveland for his fourth home run of the year, a shot clearing the rightfield wall in the fourth inning.

Ahead of the blast, however, Cleveland had set down 11 Phillies in a row following singles by Denny Doyle and Larry Bowa leading off the game.

But after Gamble connected, Cleveland retired 11 more Phils in a row in breezing to his ninth win against eight losses.

Fortified with a good fast ball and slider, Cleveland needed only 95 pitches to set the Phils down on the Gamble hit and singles also by Mike Ryan and Willie Montanez.

He reached a 3-0 count only on Larry Bowa in the ninth inning and recorded his major league high of 10 strikeouts while facing only 32 batters.

"It seems like everytime you walk somebody he scores," Cleveland said. "That was really on my mind when I went 3-0 on Bowa. I figured 'Gee, I've come this far; why should I give them anything.'"

Aside from the pitching performance, Cleveland also contributed two singles to a 15-hit Cardinals attack, lofted a sacrifice fly as one of his two RBI and scored a run.

"I've always figured I could hit pretty well," he said. "One other game I had two hits and three RBI."

Other lusty Cardinal hitting came from Lou Brock, who had four singles, and Matty Alou, whose three hits drove in as many runs.

The Cards, after Gamble's homer tied the score at 1-1, broke in front on Joe Torre's triple scoring Alou in the fifth.

Alou singled home Dal Maxvill and Cleveland to make it 41 off Barry Lersch (4-9) in the sixth. Cleveland's sacrifice fly and a double by Alou capped the scoring in the eighth.

QB Job Open

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals opened their training camp at Lake Forest College this morning, with the battle for No. 1 quarterback shaping up as highlight.

Head coach Bob Hollway, who assumed the Cardinal reins in February, said after signing 6-foot-1, 200-pound Pete Beathard the 29-year-old former American Football League star would be given full opportunity to win the position.

Beathard, acquired in January of 1970 in exchange for Charley Johnson, sat on the bench through most of last season while Jim Hart directed the Cardinals to an 8-5-1 record.

Before that, the product of Southern California had called signals for the Kansas City Chiefs and the Houston Oilers of the AFL.

Hollway, surveying a young but experienced Cardinals squad, said emphasis would be placed on pass rushing in an attempt to put the team on top the National Conference's East Division.

He had neither high praise nor criticism for the quarterbacking of Hart but indicated the team must attain a more consistent offense.

Off-season deals instigated by Hollway included that for Rodger Bird, a fleet return specialist, and for Homer Jones, a once-prominent wide receiver.

Some of the better scrambling for positions could be that for linebacking posts, considered the backbone of Minnesota Vikings defenses Hollway once coached.

Challengers for positions among rookies include high draft choices Norm Thompson, Dan Dierdorf and Larry Wlingham, who are on the College All-Stars squad drilling at nearby Evanston, Ill.

The Cardinals in 1970 headed the East Division until losing their final three games. Their accomplishments for the season included three straight shutouts highlighted by a 35-0 verdict over National Conference champion Dallas in the Cotton Bowl.

About 50 candidates among a squad of 74 were expected to report to Hollway and his staff today. Remainder of the squad is due to report Sunday.

The Cardinals have three weeks to prepare for their exhibition opener Aug. 14 against Houston in St. Louis. The team's regular season opener is Sept. 19 against the Washington Redskins.

AHRA Gateway Nationals Set at International Raceway

ST. LOUIS— The first national drag racing meet ever held in Missouri or Illinois, the American Hot Rod Association's Gateway Nationals, will convene at St. Louis International Raceway July 30, 31 and Aug. 1

More than 500 of the nation's finest drag racers, including Don "Big Daddy" Garlits and Gene Snow, will be featured in the battle for more than $50,000 in prize money and an additional $50,000 in contingencies and manufacturer awards.

St. Louis International Raceway, located five minutes from the Gateway Arch, is currently undergoing a complete renovation, including the lengthening of the former one-eighth mile strip to a quarter-mile distance.

Wayne Meinert, track president, also announced that new grandstands have been constructed and the track's facilities are equipped to handle more than 25,000 racing fans each day. New lighting and sound systems have been installed and crews are paving the pit areas with asphalt.

This will be the seventh of the 10-race AHRA Grand American Series of professional drag racing. The previous six were held in Long Beach, Calif.; Phoenix, Ariz.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Baton Rouge, La.; and Denver.

Last week's Marion County (Ohio) International Raceway meet was postponed to Aug. 27, 28 and 29 because of inclement weather.

Heading the list of pre-entered drivers in the AA/fueled dragster class is Garlits, of Seffner, Fla., the winningest driver in the history of drag racing, not only in the number of national titles (seven) but in the amount of money, also. Garlits' last victory in Denver enabled the 29-year-old pilot to move into the frontrunning position in the AHRA points chase.

Garlits, who almost retired from racing last year when an accident resulted in the loss of part of his right foot, also won the Fort Worth race and finished second in the Long Beach meet. He currently holds the AHRA elapsed time record of AA/fuelers--6.55 seconds--for the quarter-mile distance.

John Wiebe of Newton, Kan., last year's AHRA World Champion, is second in the points parade and was the Baton Rouge winner. He is the AHRA speed record holder with a clocking of 227.84 miles an hour.

Gary Cochran of Fountain Valley, Calif., is third because of victories at Long Beach and Phoenix; and next in line is Jim Nicoll of Spring Valley, Calif., the West Palm Beach victor.

Snow, of Fort Worth, has captured four funny car titles, and has a commanding lead over Mart Higginbotham of Dallas, Texas, and Dick Harrell of Kansas City, Kan., the winners of the other two races. Funny cars are fiberglassed replicas of the most popular Detroit-manufactured cars and have power plants strong enough to propel these sleek nitro fuel-burning cars into the six-seconds category consistently.

Professional drivers in the pro-stock class, as well as drivers in competition, street and top stock eliminators; GT-1, and GT-2 eliminators; and two classes of motorcycles, will also be vying for points and prize money during the three-day affair.

Gates will open at 3 p.m. Friday with time trials, official AHRA record runs and qualifying sessions. Saturday's agenda gets underway at noon and a special AA/fuel and funny car program will begin at 8 p.m. with a $6,000 purse at stake.

Sunday's finale will begin at 8 a.m. with further qualifying sessions, and final eliminations will start at 2 p.m.

Tickets can be picked up at the gate or any of the following Sears stores: Northwest Plaza, Kingshighway, Grand Avenue, and Crestwood Plaza in Missouri; and East St. Louis, Belleville and Alton in Illinois.

The track is located at the intersection of Interstate 70 and Illinois Rt. 203, Granite City Exit North.

Further information is available by contacting John Durbin or Mike Hayes at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge (618) 345-1530 in Collinsville.

Apollo Target Rated Pilot's Nightmare

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The lunar target of Apollo 15 is a pilot's nightmare and a scientist's dream.

The landing site is a small valley surrounded on three sides by the highest mountains of the moon and bordered on the fourth side by a 1,200-footdeep gorge with treacherously sloping banks.

It is located farther north than any astronaut has ever been, just on the lower inside edge of the man on the moon's right eye.

The 12-day Apollo 15 mission is scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla., next Monday, July 26. If all goes well, four days later astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin will land on the moon.

Their trajectory toward lunar landing is like that of a basketball swishing through a net without touching the rim of the basket.

They will slide down a steep landing pattern which will carry them over a mountain pass and then drop them almost vertically for the last 20 feet into the valley.

If the flight path is out of line, or too low, or short, Scott and Irwin face the danger of smashing Falcon, their lunar module, into the Apennine Mountains which guard the north, east and south of the valley.

If the flight path is long, the moon lander could topple into the gorge, called Hadley Rille, or touch down on the wrong side of the mile—wide gully and block the astronauts from their prime geology objectives.

To compound the problem, nobody is precisely sure what the surface is like at the target point. Photographs taken of the area give only about 20 meters of resolution, much coarser than photos of previous landing sites.

Scott, the Apollo 15 commander who'll be doing the actual flying, shrugs away the danger of the landing.

"I don't anticipate any problem in the landing area," he says, noting that high resolution photos of nearby areas indicate the landing site should be a fairly smooth plain.

Besides, says the astronaut, the Hadley-Apennine site is worth the risk—the area is a geological gold mine.

"I don't see any place else on the moon you can find with so much geological variety," he says.

Scott and Irwin will be able to sample five different rock formations during their three surface excursions.

With all the places there are to visit, why does the boss always mention only one place he wishes you would go to?

Travel is broadening—especially after sitting through a cross-country trip by bus.

Frankly Speaking

By Senator Tom Eagleton

AMPHETAMINE CONTROLS STILL NEEDED

Since last year I have been urging the passage of legislation to tighten control over the production and distribution of amphetamines, a much-abused class of dangerous drugs.

Earlier this month the Justice Department did place many of these drugs under tighter control by administrative order, but this action fell short of accomplishing what needed to be done.

Not surprisingly, several drug companies filed requests for hearings to appeal the tighter controls on certain of their amphetamine products -- beginning a process that could have delayed enforcement of the Justice Department's order for years.

Following an announcement that a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee intended to hold hearings on my bill to tighten controls through legislation, all but one company withdrew their petitions.

20% Not Regulated

The one appeals hearing still to be held will be on Eskatrol, the largest selling diet pill in the country and a product of Smith Kline and French Laboratories. This pill accounts for about 20% of the amphetamine sales market, or $11-12 million in annual sales. Its amphetamine ingredient can be easily separated from the other components. Nonetheless, because Smith Kline andFrench decided to file for a hearing, Eskatrol is excluded from the Justice Department order.

Justice Department personnel have assured me that hearings on these products will be scheduled soon. But it is now possible that Eskatrol will remain under relatively lax control for as much as two years while Smith Kline and French pursues its appeal -- all the while manufacturing as much Eskatrol as it wants.

The Judiciary Subcommittee hearings on my bill were held July 15 and 16. At the hearings a former "speed freak," or heavy amphetamine user, testified that Eskatrol as among the legitimate trade name products that commonly find their way through the illegal drug market to young people on our city streets.

Swedish Experience

The second major deficiency of the Justice Department's order is that it fails to include two amphetamine -like stimulants, Ritalin and Preludin.

Ritalin attracted public attention a few months ago when the news media reported that this drug was being administered to children in the public schools to "control" disruptive behavior. Preludin, a diet pill, is probably less familiar to the American public, although an epidemic of Preludin abuse in Sweeden brought it to the forefront of attention there, causing it to be banned in 1965. Ritalin was voluntarily withdrawn in Sweden by the manufactures three years later.

Those of us with the responsibility for protecting the public against the hazards of drug abuse cannot afford to take incomplete measures. Legislation of the type I propose is still very much needed.

Flag Pole for Girl at Benton

BENTON— Miss Jana Stroup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stroup, attended the national meeting of Future Homemakers of America in Kansas City, July 12-16.

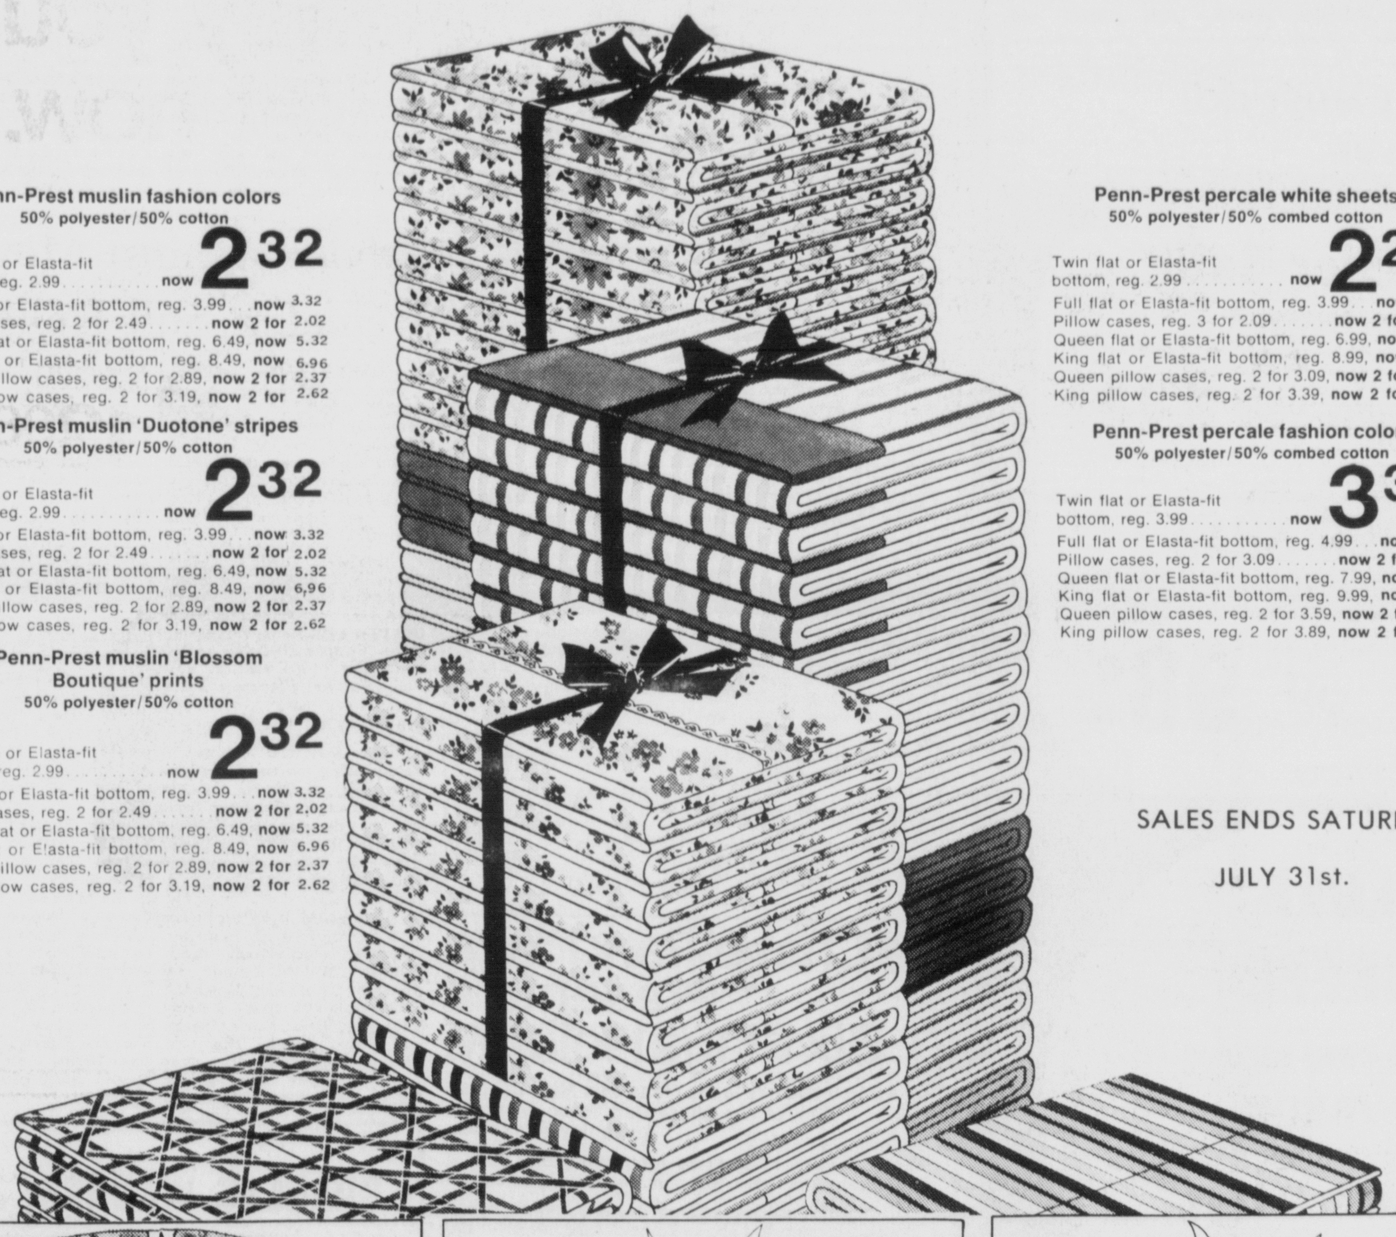

Miss Stroup was responsible for the flag ceremony. The ceremony, presented before an audience of 14,000 originally was written by Miss Stroup and Mrs. Pat Hoffman, girls physical education instructor at Kelly high school.

Fourteen students at Kelly participated in the presentation, a modern dance interpretation of the history of the United States, to the music of the "Armed Forces Suite."

Dancers were Betty Jane Halter, Janice Wright, Terry Simms, Chris Nebel, Charlene Urhahn, Dorothy Heuring, Rosanne Scherer, Nancy Miller, Valeria Diebold, Patti Vetter, Ruth Ann Westrich, Nancy LeGrand, Debbie Hampton, and LaDonna Margrabe.

The flag ceremony, first presented at the state FHA meeting in Jefferson City this spring, received a standing ovation. The group was requested to perform at the national meeting by Mrs. Marie David Huff, Jefferson City, adviser for FHA chapters in Missouri.

'Cushy Job' Bothers Astronaut While Friends Dying in Vietnam

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)— It bothers Alfred M. Worden that while he's in a "cushy job" training to go to the moon, his friends and former classmates are getting shot at and killed in Vietnam.

Worden, a 29-year-old trained fighter pilot, who has never seen combat, says the contrast between his job and the Vietnam fighting "leaves you with a bad feeling."

"I don't like the idea of my roommate from college being sent over there to fight a war while I'm here in a cushy job," says the West Point graduate.

Worden, an Air Force major, says if he hadn't been selected for the space program "I would be volunteering for Vietnam."

Worden, a balding, fast-talking native of Jackson, Mich., was graduated from West Point in 1955. He got his commission in the Air Force and became a skillful fighter pilot. After four years, however, he found he was more interested in airplanes as instruments of science than as weapons of war.

He went back to school in 1961, earned a master of science degree and then spent more than two years learning to be a test pilot and training other pilots. He was good enough to be selected in 1966, for astronaut training.

Worden's first trip into space, as command module pilot on Apollo 15, is scheduled to begin with launch from Cape Kennedy of Monday. It will be flown in the long shadow cast by the deaths in Russia of three cosmonauts. The fatalities emphasize the danger of space flight.

"We're not fighting a war," says Worden of himself and his fellow spacemen, "but, damn if our risks aren't as great as the ones combat pilots take."

Astronauts, he said once, "feel that anything can happen, but space flight is worth the risk."

Worden, unmarried, enjoys an active social life. He has escorted television stars in New York and secretaries in Houston.

"He's more interested in showing you a good time than in showing you about who he is," says one of his girl friends. "He's not really handsome, but he's got a way about him that's rare."

Worden was married to the former Pamela Ellen Vander Beek, Bayside, N.Y. Their marriage ended quietly in what one friend said was "a very, very civilized divorce."

The astronaut's two daughters, Merrill, 13, and Alison, 11, live with their mother almost within sight of Worden's apartment.

Not Even Plane Crash Dimmed Irwin's Yen to Be Astronaut

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — James B. Irwin Jr. decided 10 years ago he wasn't going to let a little thing like an airplane crash keep him from going to the moon.

Irwin, a 41-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, is the lunar module pilot on the Apollo 15 mission scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy Monday.

He started working for an astronaut assignment almost from the day he learned the country was getting into the manned space business.

"It just seemed like that's where the future was," says Irwin.

Irwin earned important astronaut credentials when he added a master's degree from the University of Michigan to his bachelor of science degree from the Naval Acaedmy and then graduated from the Air Force Experimental Test Pilot School.

He was ready to apply for the space program in 1961 when a casual weekend training flight ended in near disaster and put him in a hospital bed unable to walk, talk or even remember.

Irwin was flying as instructor with a student pilot at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. They were cruising at 300 feet in a routine air traffic pattern one moment and spinning toward earth the next.

"The student was flying the airplane at the time," says Irwin.

"Apparently he stalled it out in the traffic pattern."

The light plane suddenly rolled into a spin, at too low an altitude for Irwin to recover control.

Irwin broke both legs, his jaw and suffered a severe concussion which wiped out his memory. Recovery was long and difficult.

Irwin was out of the hospital in three months, but he was still grounded. The Air Force, he says, has a rule that if a concussion results in a loss of memory the pilot is grounded for 12 months.

The Air Force pilot was flying again 14 months after the accident. And a few months later he graduated from the elite Air Force Aerospace Research Pilot School.

Irwin, the oldest son of a plumber, was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., and graduated from high school in Salt Lake City. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Irwin, now live in San Jose, Calif.

The astronaut said his father, a World War I veteran, encouraged him to go after a military career. Irwin applied for the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, but was accepted instead by the Naval Academy. He graduated in 1951 and took his commission inthe Air Force.

Irwin met his wife, the former Mary Ellen Monroe of Corvallis, Ore., while he was in San Jose for the Christmas holidays.

They married in 1958 and have four children, Joy, 11; Jill, 10; James, 8; and Jan 6.

Quiet, reserved and calm, Irwin and his family live quietly, spending most of his off hours in home-oriented activity. They live in a modernistic home which is surrounded by lush landscaping, the handiwork of his pretty wife.

Advice Against Movie Remakes Still Unheeded

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "You should never remake great pictures," Samuel Goldwyn once advised fellow producer David O. Selznick. "You can never do them better the second time. The thing to do is remake your flops. Then you can improve on your errors."

Selznick didn't follow Goldwyn's advice. He went ahead and remade "A Farewell to Arms," a well-remembered 1933 film with Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper. Selznick's 1958 version with his wife Jennifer Jones and Rock Hudson was a flop. It proved to be the producer's last movie.

The Goldwyn counsel is today being ignored by a new generation of film makers. In their search for screen subjects th producers are sifting through the studio vaults for properties that once captured audiences and might do so today.

The record is by no means forbidding. American-International threw caution to the winds by remaking "Wuthering Heights," a 1939 Goldwyn classic starring Laurence Olivier, Merle Oberon and David Niven. The new version captured no great praise from the critics. But it did enough business to rank as American-International's No. 1 grosser.

The company then went on the prowl for other classics (which are conveniently in public domain and require no story purchase). "The House of Seven Gables" is now being filmed in England (it was last made in 1940). Also in the works: "Camille," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Les Miserables" and "The Scarlet Letter."

The new management of MGM set on a course to recapture some of the famed company's earlier magic. A remake of "Trader Horn (1931) has been announced. Also a musicalized "Tom Sawyer." The Mark Twain Classic previously starred Jack Pickford in 1917, Jackie Coogan in 1930, and Tommy Kelly in 1938.

Ross Hunter has announced a musical version of the Frank Capra film of 1937, "Lost Horizon."

Remakes sometimes succeed– "Romeo and Juliet," "A Place in the Sun". But the record of failures is overwhelming: "Mutiny on the Bounty, "Stagecoach," 'Goodybye, Mr. Chips," "My Man Godfrey," "Barrets of Wimpole Street," "It happened One Night," etc. Still, that doesn't stop producers from trying.

WARN CHILDREN ABOUT PLANTS THAT POISON

Plant	Toxic Part	Symptoms
Hyacinth, Narcissus, Daffodil	Bulbs	Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea. May be fatal.
Oleander	Leaves, Branches	Extremely poisonous. Affects the heart, produces severe digestive upset and has caused death.
Poinsettia	Leaves	Fatal. One leaf can kill a child.
Mistletoe	Berries	Fatal. Both children and adults have died from eating the berries.
Lily-of-the-valley	Leaves, Flowers	Irregular heart beat and pulse, usually accompanied by digestive upset and mental confusion.
Iris	Underground stems	Severe, but not usually serious, digestive upset.
Rhubarb	Leaf blade	Fatal. Large amounts of raw or cooked leaves can cause convulsions, coma, followed rapidly by death.
Wisteria	Seeds, Pods	Mild to severe digestive upset. Many children are poisoned by this plant.
Laurels, Rhododendron, Azaleas	All parts	Fatal. Produces nausea and vomiting, depression, difficult breathing, prostration and coma.
Jessamine	Berries	Fatal. Digestive disturbance and nervous symptoms.
Yew	Berries, Foliage	Fatal. Foliage more toxic than berries. Death is usually sudden without warning symptoms.
Oaks	Foliage, Acorns	Affects kidneys gradually. Symptoms appear only after several days or weeks. Takes a large amount for poisoning. Children should not be allowed to chew on acorns.

More than 700 species of plants are known to have caused death or illness.

Included in these 700 are some of nature's most delicate creations: the oleander bush, the lily-of-the-valley, and the rhododendron.

Each year an estimated 12,000 children ingest these plants and others like them. A Seattle study revealed that 10 percent of child poisoning cases observed were of youngsters who had eaten toxic plants, and that in six percent of these cases, the children's parents had no idea the plants were dangerous.

The leaves of the lovely oleander bush, an indoor plant, contain a deadly heart stimulant that, if eaten, could kill a child. Some people have died merely from eating steaks that had been speared on oleander twigs and roasted over an open fire.

Of greatest danger to children are the small attractive berries they find in their yards or in fields near their homes. The berries often look like wild fruit — a mouth-watering delight. Danger — their juice may be deadly.

In Ohio, one summer, a little girl prepared a play luncheon in the back yard. On a miniature plate she put an apple, a radish and some berries she had picked from a shrub growing in her mother's rock garden. Four hours later she lapsed into a coma and within seven hours after the luncheon she died.

An autopsy showed that the berries she had eaten were from the Daphne mezereum plant. It is cultivated in back yards and also grows wild in thickets throughout the country. In early spring it has white or purple flowers that are followed by small red or yellow berries containing a corrosive poison that produces severe burns in the mouth and digestive tract. Only a few berries are enough to kill a child.

In Tacoma, Washington, a young girl, who was thought to have choked on a piece of candy, died suddenly. A careful study of the case revealed that the girl had eaten several berries from the poisonous nightshade bush growing near her home.

This vine-like plant, found throughout the country, stretches along the ground or grows upright to a height of about two feet. Its berries, which grow in clusters, are most toxic when unripe; when they ripen to a bright yellow, orange, and red, they become the least poisonous part of the plant.

Another berry found to be deadly only in its unripe form is that of the Lantana camara or red sage, which grows extensively in the South. A few years ago 17 children in Florida were treated for ingestion of this berry; four of them were hospitalized with severe poisoning and one girl died a short while after eating the berries.

Of nearly equal attraction to children are the various parts of fruit trees — the twigs of cherry trees that release cyanide when eaten, and the leaf of the peach tree which contains hydrocyanic acid, one of the five most dangerous poisons known. Five children became ill after drinking "tea" brewed with hot water and peach leaves.

A garden that contains potatoes and tomatoes presents a further threat to the child. The foliage and vines of both plants contain alkaloid poisons that can, when swallowed, create nervous disorder and stomach upset.

Most dangerous of all plants in the vegetable garden is rhubarb. Its stalk, commonly used in baking and cooking, of course is not toxic, but the leaf blade, containing oxalic acid which crystallizes in the kidneys, causes severe damage if a number of leaves are eaten.

Castor bean seeds, sold in any garden store for about 25 cents a packet, contain the powerful blood poison ricin that could kill a child. The beans are a mottled black and brown and resemble a beetle. Children often play with them, and jewelry manufacturers make necklaces from them. If they are chewed or swallowed, they become deadly.

It is essential that children and adults understand the dangers involved in eating plants they are unfamiliar with. Those growing in the classroom or around the home should be identified in every way before they are appreciated for something other than their natural beauty!

For more information about protecting your children from potentially dangerous plants, send for the free booklet, "Plants That Poison" by writing to: Corporate Communications, Geigy Agricultural Chemicals, 5300 Edina Industrial Boulevard, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55435.

There were 6 fewer heart deaths in Scott County in 1970. Our hospital intensive care is beginning to pay dividends.

On the other hand, lung cancers were the highest cause of malignancy deaths, with 5 of them in females. There were 5 more lung cancer deaths than the number killed from motor vehicles. Deaths from emphysema (7 from 5) and cirrhosis of the liver (5 from 2) were both up from 1969. Could the figures be telling us something about cigarette smoking and the drinking of alcohol?

Lightning Flash Starts House Fire

50 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1921

Fairview--Misses Ruth Moser and Floy Randolph spent Sunday with Pearl Jones.

Fine showers fell here Tuesday afternoon and night and were rather general throughout the Sikeston district. These rains were of untold benefit to growing corn and other crops and also brought relief from the oppressive heat which had prevailed here for the past few weeks.

Canalou--H. O. Kerstner was in Sikeston Wednesday.

Matthews--Mrs. Louis Hunott was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday.

40 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1931

Electa Shankle, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shankle, living near McMullin, was painfully injured Monday afternoon while playing with neighborhood children at the home. The children had driven large spikes into a tree using the nails as "steps" in the climb to the first limb. From this height they jumped onto a bag swing. One of the spikes gave way and the child slipped to the ground cutting one leg severely on one of the lower nails. Several stitches were necessary to close the opening.

The Standard congratulates Mr. and Mrs. Ray Marshall upon the birth of a healthy baby boy, who arrived Saturday afternoon, July 18. Mrs. Marshall and son are at the home of Mrs. Elmos Taylor, sister of Mrs. Marshall. Mrs. Marshall was formerly Miss Katherine Hanner.

A blinding flash of lightning, followed by a deafening thunder clap, started a fire at the home of Mrs. Fannie Matthews, a widow on Vernon avenue this city, early Thursday morning. Persons living in this section of Sikeston claim that they were abruptly aroused from sleep by the loud report.

Mrs. Lillie Taylor, died at the home of her son, Lovey Taylor, in Matthews Monday afternoon. She became ill Monday and lived only a few hours.

30 YEARS AGO
July 22, 1941

A daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Tierney of Route 3, Monday, has been named Phyllis Ann.

Four youths passed tests Tuesday night at the Sikeston Municipal swimming pool, qualifying them for senior rank in Red Cross water safety and lifesaving, Wilbur C. Ensor, chairman of this phase of activity of the Scott County chapter, announced Wednesday. Those satisfactorily completing the week-long annual training course were Joe Arbaugh, Billy Bess, Joe Cooley and Harry Gross.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Christian at Sikeston General Hospital Wednesday.

Preliminary work has started, preparatory to construction of a six-room brick colonial, two-story house on North Kingshighway for J. S. Kevil. The residence will be constructed south of the McMullin apartments.

Better Food Labeling Sought

ORAN— Abram Hirschowitz, head of the Scott County Voter's League, said yesterday he is preparing a proposal to summit to the Missouri Division of Public Health and Welfare and the Food and Drug Administration, calling for "truth in labeling" procedures on food.

Hirschowitz, a native of Oran and former Oran mayor, said his proposal says that bread should be stamped with the date it was baked, milk should contain a butter fat reading on the label, and canned goods should list the amount of the contents that are food products and the amount that is water.

"We need to have a law that will end the coding on labels," he said. "Housewives can't read the codes or understand exactly what they are buying."

Hirschowitz said it would be useless to ask local bakers to stamp dates on their labels, and said that it should be done on a larger level.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice. (Psalm 96:12)

PRAYER: O God, increase in us a sensitivity to the beauty of the world around. Your touch is in every flower, tree, rock, and stream, reminding us that the earth is Yours and all that is in it. Amen.

It's The Law

A Quiet Marriage Agreement

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Horace was a real active politician. Running for office, he also found time to run after one of his more prettier female workers. When he caught her, however, and took improper liberties with her, she threatened to call the police.

To diswade her, Horace offered to marry her. And, he did. Thus, he lost his freedom and three weeks later he also lost the election. Thoroughly defeated, he started an action to have his marriage annulled.

"I was forced into it against my will," he told the judge. ""My wife threatened to have me arrested knowing that it would ruin my chances of being elected. It was like holding a gun to my head."

"If anyone was guilty of skulduggery," retorted the wife, "It was Horace. He married me to keep my mouth shut. If he got tricked, he tricked himself."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you give the defeated candidate back his freedom?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that under circumstances such as in this case, when a man elects to get married in order to avoid criminal prosecution, he cannot later say he was forced into the marriage. He had an option, noted the judge. He could have decided to fight the charges instead of deciding to propose.

On this date:

In 1789, Napoleon Bonaparte captured the Egyptian city of Cairo.

In 1934, bank robber John Dillinger was shot to death by FBI agents in Chicago.

In 1937, the U. S. Senate defeated a measure proposed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to reorganize and enlarge the Supreme Court.

In 1943, in World War II allied forces captured Palermo, Sicily.

In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the presidents of 18 other Western Hemisphere nations signed the Panama declaration outlining the political and economic beliefs of American states.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy asked Congress to act to head off a threatened rail strike in a dispute over work rules.

Ten years ago: French forces at the naval and air base at Bizerte, Tunisia, broke a Tunisian siege of the base and occupied much of the city.

Five years ago: There was racial rioting in Cleveland, Ohio.

One year ago: Some 500 Hindu pilgrims drowned when a flood in the Himalayan foothills swept 24 buses and five taxis into a river.

No. 1 Cont. from Page 1

was driving in the 100 block of North Main at 4 a.m. when an unidentified man in a light blue car attempted to force her from the street. She said she avoided the man and turned west on East Malone but the man continued to follow her and give this account:

When she had traveled to Leonard's Shell Station, the man pulled beside her car and slowly forced her to a halt. She said the man got from his car, walked to her car and told her to "get out and come with me." She refused and began beating the man with her hands until he moved away from her car and she again drove west on East Malone.

The woman told police she then turned into the parking lot of Malone and Hyde but the man had followed and blocked her exit. When he got from his car the second time, she fled on foot into Malone and Hyde for assistance.

She returned a moment later with help, but the man had left taking her purse and car keys.
